PFA'ers eye farm legislation

By MELISSA PIPER

PARADISE — Members of the Pa. Farmer's Association in Lancaster County, recently visited Washington, D. C. and Harrisburg in an effort to acknowledge legislation affecting agricultural concerns both on a national and state level.

In a report given at the Lancaster County Farmer's Association Spring meeting held here on Tuesday evening, Ivan Yost, chairman of the legislation committee, briefed members on the bills currently slated for attention.

Yost noted that most attention had centered around HB 1793 which is entitled the "Federal Estate Tax Bill." The bill which is currently on waivers in Washington, would increase the amount of deduction taken for an estate from $60,000. to $200,000. Up until this point inheritors of a farm or property were taxed on the value of the land after the deduction was made. This made keeping an entire farm intact, difficult as much capital was needed to pay the required taxes on the estate. Often inheritors had to slice up the property for sale in order to pay the amounts, instead of being able to salvage the acreage for agricultural production.

PFA members are supporting the increased exemption and along the same lines are supporting HB 3831 which values the land at its agricultural worth instead of at commercial values.

Yost reported that Senator Hugh Scott, R-Pa. had expressed optimism that the bills would be passed although the Senator noted that farmers might have to be prepared to take $150,000. exemption instead of the full $200,000. if the bill is to pass.

Other concerns which had been discussed in Washington included talks on grain inspection and

SOUTHAMPTON — More than 150 area dairy farmers will travel to Washington, D.C., Tuesday to stress the need for preserving dairy farms.

The dairymen and their wives, members of Inter-State Milk Producers' Cooperative, will be attending the April 13 and 14 sessions along with representatives of the nation's news media and representatives of various consumer organizations.

"There's presently an element apparently obsessed with doing away with the family dairy farms", said Boyd C. Gartley, director of member and public relations, "these people, and it appears columnist Sylvia Porter is now among them, are threatening to destroy the same legal principles that have allowed dairymen to remain in existence."

An array of noted officials along with the dairymen themselves will use the opportunity to cover issues involving such milk policies as marketing orders, price supports and the role of dairy cooperatives.

The dairymen from Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia will be converging on Washington - many of them via buses from Lancaster and Blair Counties, Pennsylvania.

Two buses are scheduled to leave from Lancaster County Tuesday. Stops are scheduled at the Guernsey Barn and the Quality Courts

Order 2 of concern to Eastern

By DIETER KRIEG

NEW HOLLAND — The price of milk is expected to drop 65 cents per hundredweight this month, according to Freeburn Love, regional marketer of Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative. He made the remark at a recent meeting here for members of the Syracuse-based cooperative.

In discussing prices, the coop leader noted that the paying price for milk in Order 2 is approximately 38 cents less than that received by Order 4 shippers, but that most of that difference is nullified by the fact that Eastern's members currently only pay a 10-cent hauling fee, while those in Order 4 pay full costs.

The speaker also pointed out that the new support prices, which became effective 10 days ago, may soon come in handy as milk prices continue to drop. Figures released by Eastern, as well as other milk marketing cooperatives in the mid-Atlantic area show that the Class I price is likely to go down to approximately $10.77 per hundredweight in May, compared to a price of $11.86 in February and $11.68 in March (Order 4 prices). Class II prices, on the other hand, are expected to remain stable with a price variation of only about a nickel per hundredweight. The new floor will avoid the drastic drop in prices such as occurred a year ago.

A major concern to the Eastern representative is that hearings are currently going on regarding the future of federal Order 2. In New York State only about 60 percent of the dairymen belong to cooperatives. If it drops much below that, the Order could be in jeopardy.

PROGRESSIVE FARMERS WANT PROFESSIONAL CONSULTATION

1. Is pH a false indicator of calcium levels in your soils?
2. Is sulphur holding back the yield, protein content and digestibility of your crops?
3. Is excessive magnesium what makes your land so wet and late?

If your present soil tests don't answer these questions, you will profit by our technical help. SOIL TESTS ARE DIFFERENT! Our complete soil analysis will help you balance soil fertility, which means more efficient cropping and feeding - less bought feed and fertilizer - more yield and profit.

WE SELL NO PRODUCTS — ONLY RECOMMENDATIONS

There is a reason why progressive farmers with sharp pencils hire us year after year for soil analyses and recommendations. We save them dollars. Balance makes crops to be proud of. Now is the time to talk it over with:

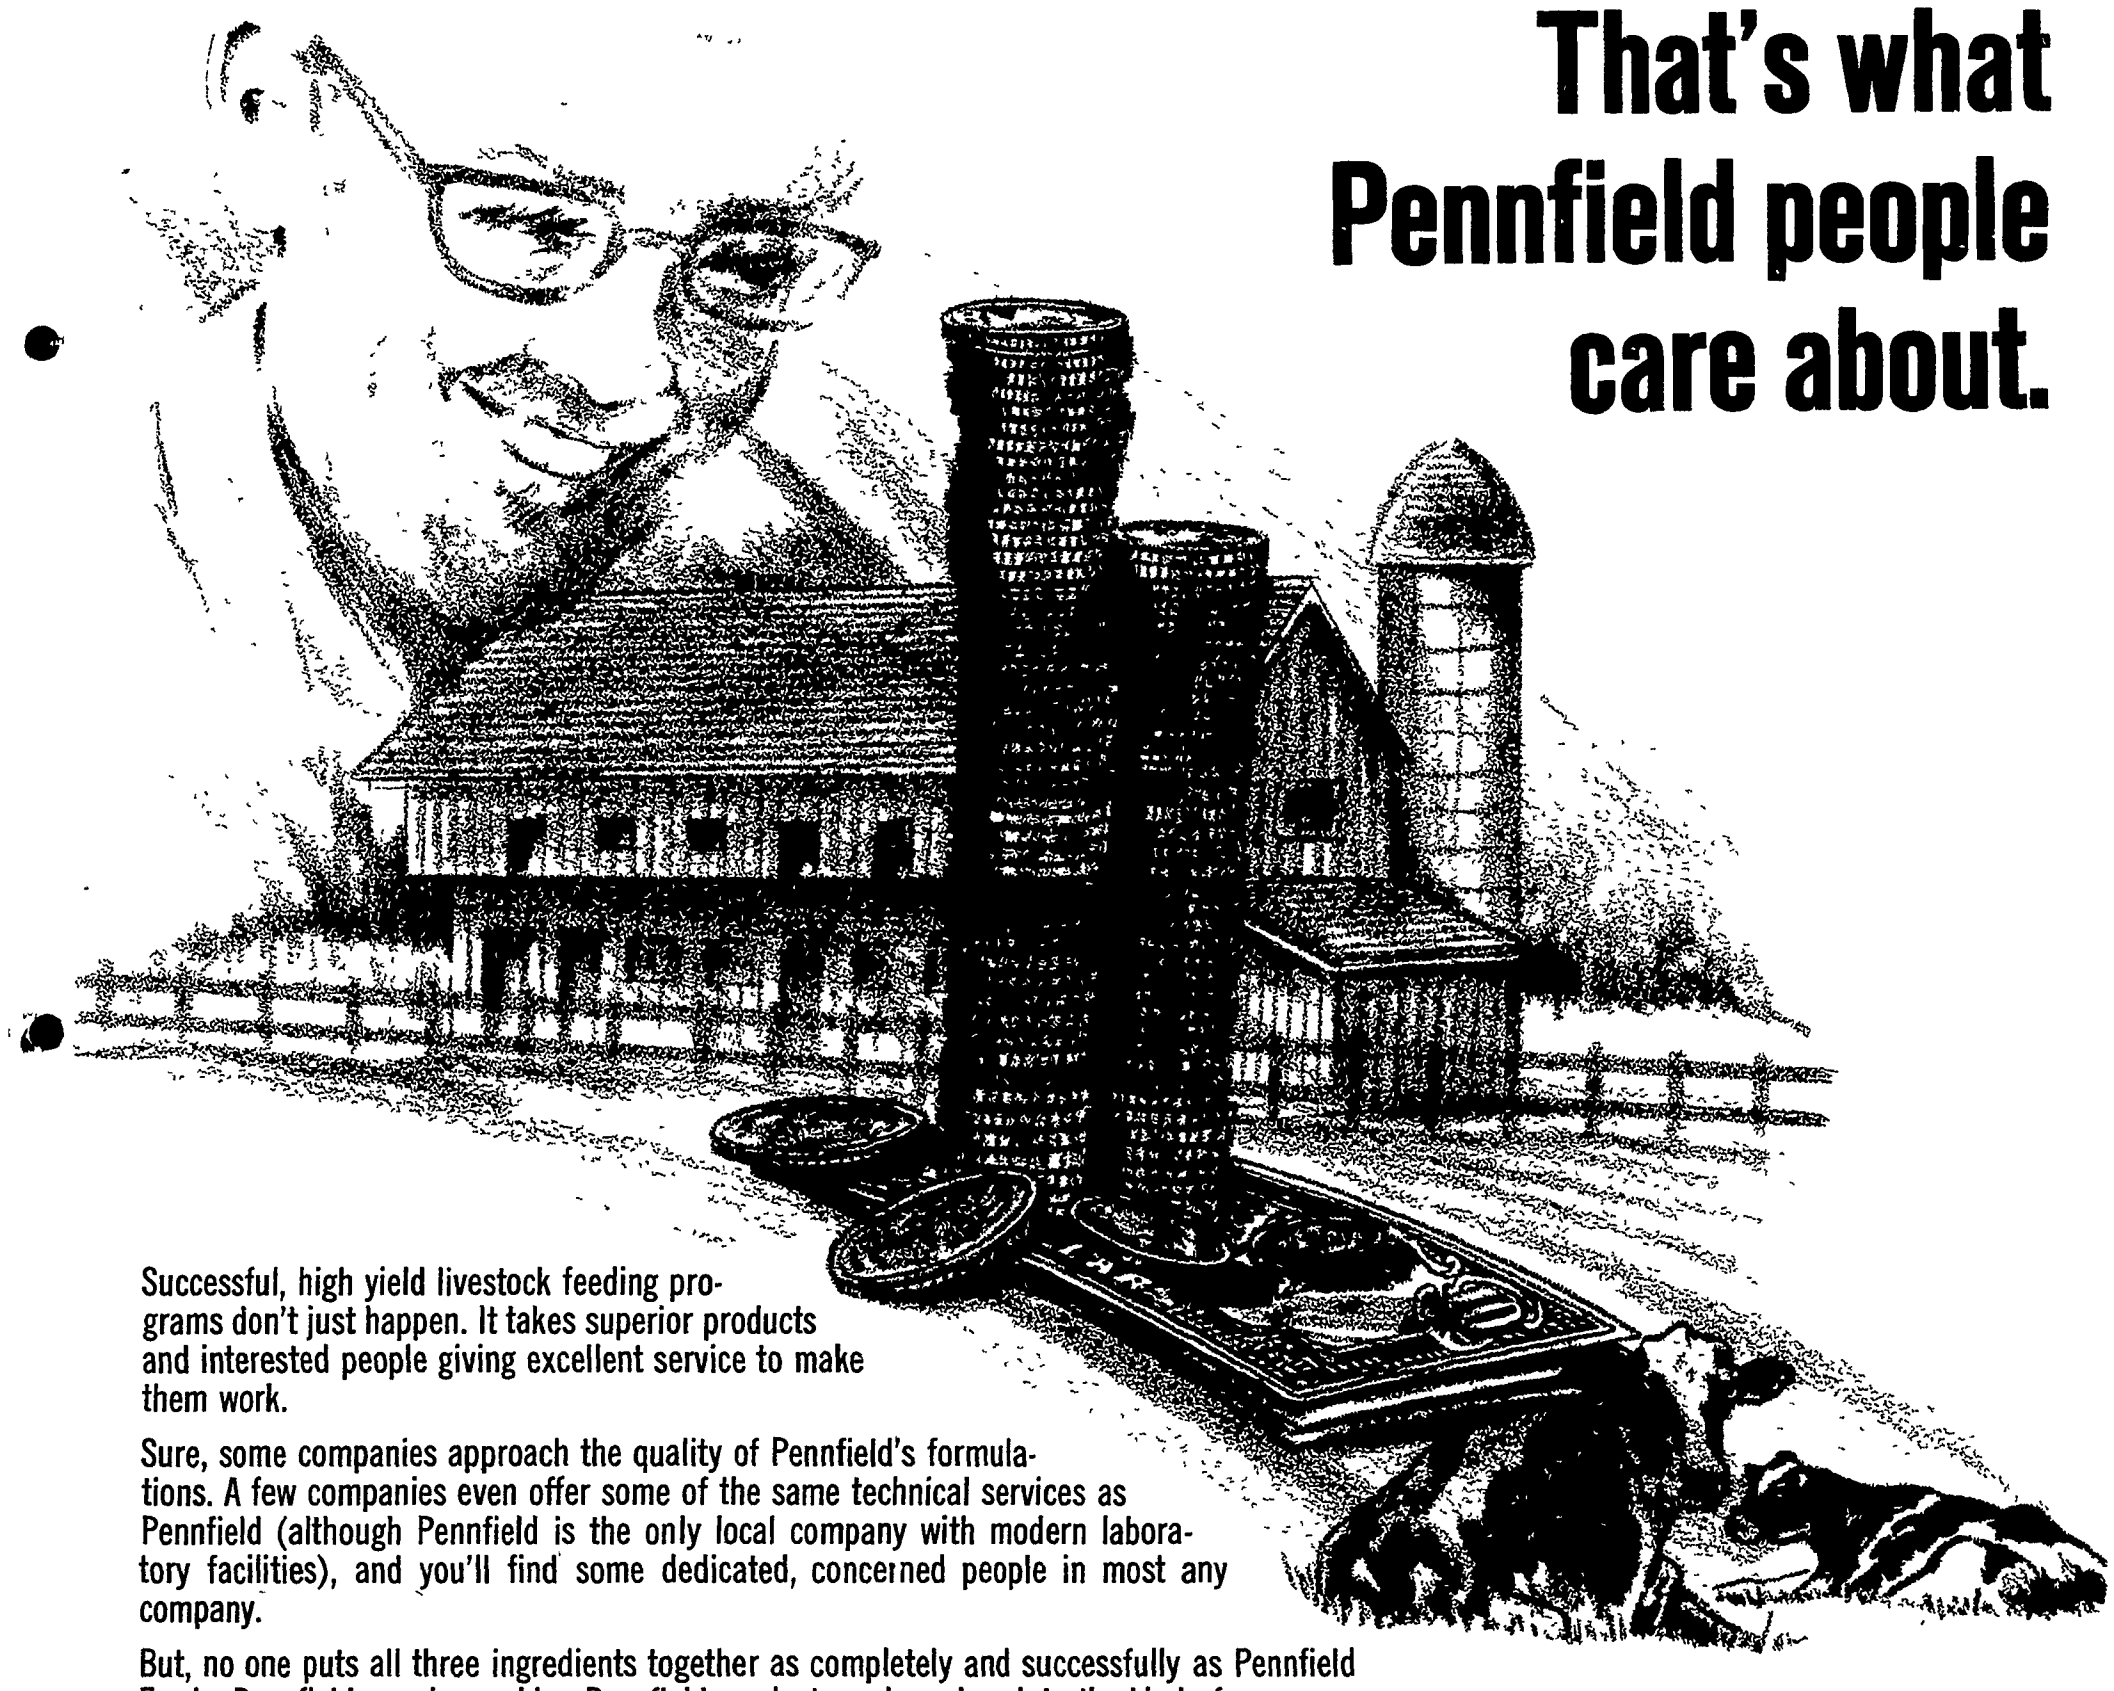
Your LIVESTOCK PRODUCTIVITY, your PROFITABILITY.

That's what Pennfield people care about.



Successful, high yield livestock feeding programs don't just happen. It takes superior products and interested people giving excellent service to make them work.

Sure, some companies approach the quality of Pennfield's formulations. A few companies even offer some of the same technical services as Pennfield (although Pennfield is the only local company with modern laboratory facilities), and you'll find some dedicated, concerned people in most any company.

But, no one puts all three ingredients together as completely and successfully as Pennfield Feeds. Pennfield people combine Pennfield products and services into the kind of complete livestock feeding and farm management programs that result in higher yields, planned growth, and increased profit for Pennfield customers.

Chemists, nutritionists, production personnel, veterinarians, computer technicians, business and marketing analysts, deliverymen, quality control specialists, financial experts, and more . . . led by your Pennfield Area Manager who can put them all together to develop and service a customized, profit-oriented program for you. These are Pennfield people. And, Pennfield people make Pennfield Feeds a better buy!

Want to know how Pennfield people can work for you to improve your yields and profit? Complete and mail this coupon for a no obligation survey.

Government food policy favored by Governor Shapp

CAMP HILL — Stating the United States is reaching the point where farmers cannot afford to produce and consumers cannot afford to buy, Gov. Milton J. Shapp called for a national food policy that "guarantees food for all people at a reasonable cost and guarantees the farmer a decent living."

Speaking at the State Agriculture Food Day Conference, Shapp announced that a food policy committee will be appointed within the next ten days to help develop a comprehensive state approach to food policy and programs.

"The federal Government has set floor prices for commodities that are less than the price of production," he said, "and they have urged farmers to plant and watched the principles of supply and demand cut the farmers profits."

Shapp said that in Pennsylvania he has tried to revamp the Agricultural Research Fund in the state Agriculture Department, but "the USDA still promotes agricultural research designed to benefit the giants rather than the consumer and the small farmer."

The governor stated that Pennsylvania has gained national and international recognition in development of food policy and programs.

"With the momentum generated by the food action campaign headed by former Agriculture Secretary Jim McHale, the campaign was highlighted by testimony delivered before the Nelson Committee in the U.S. Senate asking for $2 billion to set up producer and consumer cooperatives," Shapp noted.

The governor also wanted to break-up the giant firms in order to return to a free and open market that would "inject some competition back into our system."

"Pennsylvania is recognized as a leader in the development of a food policy and we must continue that leadership," the governor concluded.

Vo-ag job programs help to boost rural resurgence

From coast to coast, there are signs of a resurgence in and across rural America.

After continuing migrations away from farms to urban centers, this long-time population trend is beginning to wane and even reverse itself in some sections of the country.

Agricultural student enrollments in many colleges and universities are at an all-time high.

An increasing number of agricultural degree recipients are returning to become full business partners in family farms; while others are entering a variety of agribusiness fields.

A growing recognition is emerging of the vital role that agriculture is playing not only in national economic health but in world affairs, too.

Many reasons are likely responsible for this apparent turnabout.

And one of them is as basic as the worldwide concern over food and the unparalleled capability of American farmers to produce the bulk of it.

At the grass-roots level in thousands of local areas, vocational agriculture teachers are developing dynamic and imaginative programs to awaken youth to the wide variety of career opportunities available in farming and related fields. These programs are reaching youths with urbanized as well as farming backgrounds and begin as early as the elementary years in school.

Annually, an awards competition is held to find successful agribusiness career programs conducted by vo ag teachers throughout the country. This competition is sponsored by the National Vocational Agricultural Teachers' Association and Sperry New Holland, manufacturer of farm machinery.

LIFE on the farm

"Hey, Marv, I need some help with this one!"

Staggering towards me with an armful of rocks — his eyes scanning the ground for more — Marvin meandered to the flatbed wagon and dropped the stones.

"That one must be pregnant," he said, as he approached with a sheepish grin on his face.

"Must be," I said laughingly, "let's get it out of here before it produces a whole lot of little ones for us to pick up next year."

Grabbing it by each end, Marvin and I lifted the heavy rock and carefully deposited it on to the wagon which was almost full. We had picked thousands of stones — sometimes spending entire afternoons at this task which some people say requires "a strong back and a weak mind."

Most Pennsylvania farmers aren't fortunate enough to not have to remove wagon-loads of stones from their fields each year. You can pick a field clean this year and next year there'll be more.

Marvin, our hired man on Dad's York County farm, said it well when he joked that rocks get pregnant and reproduce. Sometimes it's hard to believe how many rocks appear from year to year. As every farmer knows, rocks are removed from fields to that machinery can be operated safely and interference from them is reduced to a minimum.

It's a tough job — one that's not only hard on a man's back and legs, but also on his enthusiasm. It's the kind of chore that's extremely boring when you're by yourself, but bearable if there's company.

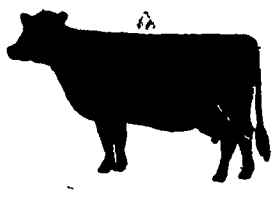
Our calloused hands stood up to the constant lifting, pulling and pushing. Rocks ground soil into our palms in a "mortar and pestle" fashion. We used our arm, back and leg muscles and usually we could tell by the end of the day — or at least by the following morning — that we had labored considerably.

Normally one of us would lift and carry a rock by himself if it didn't weigh over about 150 pounds. A few weighed much more than that, requiring two or three to carry it, and if that wasn't enough we resorted to tractor power.

Nobody looks forward to an afternoon of rock picking, but there were some nice things about it: It gave a fellow the chance to exercise his muscles, and if the weather was nice you could get a neat tan.

What made it amusing was when Marvin came up with some funny comment like a rock being pregnant . . . and then I could ask him if he was responsible.

"Heck no," he'd say, "what do you think I am?"



"Keep 'Sandy' in this morning," I told our hired man, Marvin, as he began to let the cows out of the barn.

"Is she in heat again, or what's the matter?" he asked, not missing a step in walking along and releasing the cows out of their stanchions.

"She failed the pregnancy test and is dropping off too far in milk production," I explained. "She'll be going to Stewartstown later in the day; make sure she has plenty of feed in front of her."

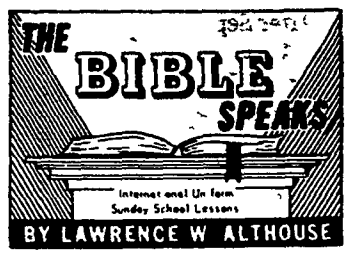
The arrival of the cattle truck almost always triggered a feeling of grief at home. I say "almost always" because there were occasions when a real loafer or temperamental cow left the barn and no one was sorry about it. But usually that wasn't the case. Some cows left the herd due to old age, others because of breeding or mastitis problems. All of them went for meat. For years they had given of themselves in terms of thousands of gallons of milk and thousands of pounds of butterfat. And then they're forced to give all that's left — their life. There's no other way.

The cattle truck backed up to the door at the southern end of the barn, gates and ramps clattering all the while.

"Okay, that's it!" I shouted as my arm instantly flew into the air to signal a stop. "That's close enough." The truck driver hopped out of the cab and ambled to the rear to check how things were lined up.

All along, like many another cow before her, "Sandy" had watched the truck approach, the door come down, and gates being fastened into place. She watched with anxious eyes. We watched with sad eyes.

We tried not to think about what a cow might think of her former master when she looked back at him and her former home through the narrow slots in the sides of the truck, on her way to the beef auction.



BARABBAS CHOICE

Lesson for April 11, 1976

Background Scripture: Matthew 26 through 27.

If you go to Jerusalem today, they will show where it is believed that Jesus stood with Pilate before the crowd. Called "The Pavement," it is the place where people of the Holy City made a fateful choice for Barabbas in place of Jesus.

I have stood on that spot and closed my eyes so that in my imagination, I might see those sights and hear those sounds. I have reassured myself that I would not have been found among those who rejected the kingship of Jesus and bestowed pardon on a murderer and robber!

Yet, who knows what one would do in certain circumstances? It is so easy to make the right choice — after almost two thousand years of hindsight!

"Whom do you want . . .?"

The picture we get of Pilate is a familiar one. He might be a public official today. He has an obvious sympathy for Jesus and seems desirous of letting him go, but he is too much the politician to let himself be guided by these inclinations. He is reluctant to make a choice and shifts it over on to the crowd.

Without realizing it, Pilate makes a choice for Barabbas: instead of letting his sense of right and wrong guide him, he "plays it safe" and puts Jesus' life in the hands of the emotional crowd.

Pilate's behaviour is not so different from the actions of people in our world today. They are inclined to do the right things, but they are too fearful or too ambitious to make the right choices. They make the choice that is likely to do them the most good or cause them the least trouble. Thus, the Barabbas choice is often the choice we make to save our own skins at the expense of our souls. It is the choice of the opportunist, the coward, and the man who "didn't mean any harm."

What to do with Christ?

So Pilate makes his Barabbas choice and so does the crowd. And their choice is somewhat different from Pilate's. They must choose between the man who taught that love is the measure of all things and a man who fervently believed that only armed insurrection could meet their needs.

In retrospect it seems to us an easy choice — it usually is in retrospect! But today when we are faced with that choice, we are as likely to choose wrongly as they did.

In church on a Sunday morning we read this incident and are incredulous, but throughout the remainder of the week as we are confronted with choices for either Christ or Barabbas, we approach them with the same insensitivity that influenced the crowd that day in Jerusalem. We choose violence and coercion, injustice and political gain, prejudice and cynicism, little realizing that in doing so we are rejecting the kingship of Christ and choosing Barabbas instead.

To Continue Pesticide Education

The present effort to certify and license pesticide applicatiors may be placed on the "second burner" because of the extension on the required deadline. It has been changed from October of 1976 to October of 1977; at least this seems to be the latest word in Pennsylvania. Regardless of the required deadline, this program has done a lot of good and can still have pesticide applicators better informed. We encourage both farmer and custom operators to continue to keep up-to-date on all materials and application methods. We must practice safety and follow regulations.

To Maintain Soil Organic Matter

The amount of decomposed vegetable and animal waste in the soil is regarded as organic matter; another name might be the amount of humus in the soil. The more of this material in the soil the better it will hold moisture, the easier it will work, and will provide a better home for plant roots and bacteria. At this time of the year when many fields are being prepared for planting it is suggested that maximum amounts of organic matter be incorporated into the topsoil. Livestock and poultry manure along with green manure crops (cover crops) do add good qualities to the soil. Soils that are worked hard each year with double cropping, need special attention in order to hold the amount of organic matter.

To Get Ready

Corn planting is a big operation in this part of the country and before this issue of Lancaster Farming is a month old, much of the corn could be planted in southeastern Pennsylvania. The temperature of the soil is the key factor as to when to plant corn and the 50 degree F temperature is desired. Soil thermometers are available to give guidance to this decision. Seed, fertilizer, and spray materials should be on hand and the corn planter in tip-top shape. Those using the no-till method of corn planting may have to wait several days longer for the proper temperature under the layers of mulch and crop residues. Plan ahead for exactly all of the needs in order to avoid costly delays when weather and soil conditions are correct.

To Feed Dry Matter.

Livestock being turned to lush pasture for the first few times need a prior feeding of hay, silage, or straw. This will prevent bloating or scouring and slow up the passage of the green forage though the intestinal tract. Some pastures are soon ready and animals should be accustomed to the forage gradually. The placing of a portable hay rack in the pastire area is strongly suggested. The removal of the milking herd 4 to 5 hours before the next milking period may avoid "grassy" flavored milk.

The hearings specifically deal with proposed alterations to the Order. Although a final decision on the matter is probably not forthcoming until July or August, Love admits he's worried just at the thought of such hearings going on. The 18 proposed amendments are all opposed by his cooperative, he says.

He warns Order 2 dairymen that if the Order is done away with, "it would be dog eat dog. I don't mean to scare you, but it's time we recognize that we're fighting a serious situation."

After Sept. 1 dairymen will need to have automatic refrigeration and agitation units on their bulk tanks, Love informed the farm families, most of whom were Amish. An agitation time of two minutes per hour is required. An alternative may be an automatic recording thermometer.

Of particular interest to Love at this time are the bonding laws which may soon become applicable to Pennsylvania milk dealers. His concern is that they are inadequate since a $200,000 limit, as is currently suggested, wouldn't be enough to bond some dealers in the area for more than two days.

The speaker's main concern, however, was that "there is danger of Order 2 not existing because of a lack of participation."

What Employers Seek

The Endicott Survey, which annually reports job prospects for June graduates nationwide, this year lists the six things employers are most interested in: (1) personal characteristics such as maturity, poise and enthusiasm; (2) grades in all subjects; (3) grades in career-related subjects; (4) types and amount of summer employment; (5) extracurricular activities - especially those showing leadership; and (6) broad cultural background.

Farm women briefed on OSHA

After 10 to 15 years of exemption from regulatory requirements, farmers are coming under increased scrutiny, losing most of their previous exemptions as employers of labor, and literally being bombarded by a host of necessary adjustments in plant operations, bookkeeping and safety precautions. The facts of these issues were presented to four York County Farmers' Association women at a state rally of Pennsylvania Farmers' Association women in Lamar.

Attending were Phyllis and Ethel Gross, Manchester R2; Mary Marsteller, Stewartstown R3; and Gail McPherson, New Park. To a large extent, most of the women who keep books for their farming operations, will be required to make workmen's compensation payments under the new state law if they do not already do so; and will be required to keep detailed accident and health records for employees, any paid workers on the farm, under Occupational Safety and Health Act specifications.

The role of Sandy Strohmyer, specialist for PFA, is to help farmers understand the new requirements by reducing the fine print regulations to managable proportions and helping them to establish positive relations with OSHA. "There are certain things the law requires," she stated to the farm women. "It will be your job as partners in this business to help us disseminate the information."

A new fact sheet on OSHA regulations including the most recent additions on roll bars and machinery guarding is available.

Soon available for purchase at Safemark dealers in the County, are the OSHA tractor safety decal, a bright orange and black decal enumerating nine safety instructions for all equipment operators.

The sticker will aid in keeping employees constantly reminded of driver safety. The employer must verbally instruct his operators once a year.

Any employer, who has as few as one paid employee, even if he only pays him $1 per year, comes under the OSHA regulations. Even members of a farmer's family, previously exempt from this law, who are paid for their labor, force the farmer employer to comply.

Tubular Gate

GOSHEN, Ind. - A new style of tubular steel gate has been added to the AGSTAR line of farm and ranch gates. The gate is constructed of high-strength structural steel tubing in 1½ or two-inch diameter. Both styles are available in lengths from four to 18 feet.

With the new Agstar gate's round steel tubing and wide spacing of the gate's tubular bars snow and sand can blow through, eliminating drifts at the gate. Optional pig rods may be inserted into pre-drilles holes to decrease the space between the bars so the gate can hold hogs as well as cattle.

Inheritance tax law criticized

YORK — County farmers are waiting anxiously as the government eyes an inheritance tax bill that would raise the family farm tax exemption from $60,000 to $200,000. Although President Ford had long stated his opposition to such a measure, he recently acquiesced to a $150,000 figure.

A discussion of the issue at a recent board meeting for the York County Farmers' Association focused on the real threat the present taxes are to the survival of the family farm. President Wayne Beshore, New Cumberland, asserts, "Because farmers have a vested interest in maintaining their farm businesses in their families, they are in the vanguard promoting the proposed legislation. But in so doing, they are really supporting the interests of all small businessmen."

Dairyman Roger Perry, Indian Rock Dam Road, pointed out that in 1942 when the law was written, land was valued at $200 or less per acre. On the average, a 100 acre farm valued at $20,000 then would have passed "virtually free of taxes to an heir with the $60,000 exemption.

"However, today with land values at about $1,000 per acre, that same farm would be valued at $100,000; and heirs of the property in many cases are being forced to sell the farms to pay the estate tax," he stated.

Pushing a pencil on the figures, Perry notes, "In all fairness, there should have been an escalation clause to make and keep the rate of taxation in line with the original law."

Had that clause been included in the 1942 legislation, the present exemption would be about $300,000, a figure equaling three times the value of the property. But even under current conditions, an exemption of over $175,000 would be necessary just to equal the 1942 purchasing power of $60,000.

Because of an effective estate plan, Charles Rauhauser now owns his parents' dairy farm without too much of a tax burden. But most of his success in maintaining the farm without great expense lies in the fact that it had been willed to his mother by her parents. When his father died, his mother worked out an agreement for him to buy.

Had his father owned the Dover property before his death, the circumstances would have been quite different. That situation would have resulted in the popularly termed "Widow's Tax" on the half of the property not exempt from taxes Rauhauser's mother would have inherited.

While current law provides that the marital deduction shall not exceed 50 per cent of the value of the adjusted gross estate, section 3 of the proposed bill would increase the marital deduction to $100,000 plus 50 per cent of the value of the estate.

"If indeed the government views the family farm as an important and vital component of the American economic system," Rauhauser contends, "Washington D.C. legislators should safeguard its existence instead of taxing them out of business."

In describing the farming businessman, Paul McPherson, New Park, puts it this way: "You have to consider the farmer as a small businessman whose sell out value has risen from several thousand dollars to several hundred thousand dollars in land, machinery, livestock and crops. He has skimped and saved all his life with little more to show for his efforts than an occasional new pick-up truck."

Organizing the group of Inter-State dairymen are members of the Young Cooperator Consultant Committee, an active group of young cooperative members. Those attending the two-day symposium at the International Inn in Washington will hear authorities such as Orville Freeman, former U.S. Secretary of Agriculture; Senator Herbert Talmadge, chairman of the Senate Committee on Agriculture; Congressman Robert Kastenmeier, member of the House Committee on the Judiciary; Herbert L. Forest, director of the Dairy Division of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, and others. Highlighting the symposium will be a panel on Wednesday consisting of James E. Honan, secretary and general manager of Inter-State Milk Producers' Cooperative. Glenn Wagner, legal counsel for Milk, Inc., and Glenn Lake, president of National Milk Producers Federation.

PFA'ers

consumer protection bills. Yost explained that the majority of PFA members were in favor of the consumer legislation if it "did not go overboard."

One topic which brought much discussion was the issue of food stamps. "A lot of farmers feel that there is a definite need for change in the food stamp program," Yost stated.

The most concern centered around having the food stamp program switched to the HEW Department as currently about two-thirds of the agricultural budget is spent on the food stamps planning and processing. The legislative chairman noted that Congressman Edwin Eshleman had voiced his agreement with the idea that perhaps food stamps were located in the wrong area of government.

Local PFA members agreed that a tightening of eligibility is long overdue for the food stamp program. One major factor noted was the limiting of food stamps to striking workers.

Also of a national concern is land use planning and Yost explained that Congressman Eshleman expressed a 100 percent agreement that control of the planning should be on a local level for more effective control of farm land.

Turning to local matters, PFA members had addressed themselves on a number of issues one of the most important being HB 217 concerning payments for municipal sewage and water hook-ups. Local members were in agreement that exemptions should be made for those individuals who do not use the municipal systems but have footage on their properties. "Unless individuals hook on to the systems, we feel they should be exempt from paying for the footage even if it runs along their property," Yost noted.

"It is unfair for someone to pay for such a system when he is not using it himself."

HB 219 was also aired as it deals with protecting prime agricultural land in Class 1, 2, and 3. The local PFA'ers would like to see the bill passed as farming land could not be sold indescriminately unless by consent of farm and agricultural leaders.

Mention was also made of HB 314 which deals with Pa. personal income taxes especially in selling a farm or property. Members would like to see the payment of taxes set up for the year in which a settlement is made.

Also noted was SB 178 which would call for the election of the attorney general in the state. The officer is now appointed which members feel is lacking in good judgement.

Turning to the local elections ahead, Yost urged members to learn about the candidates and know how they stand on issues important to the farming community.

Pa. ag. is 'rebounding'

HARRISBURG -. Pennsylvania Agriculture Secretary Raymond J. Kerstetter told participants at a Pennsylvania Food Day Panorama this week at Camp Hill that the Commonwealth is rebounding as a food supplier in the East because of high energy costs.

In the 1960's, Kerstetter noted, the number of farms in Pennsylvania declined by 25 percent. With this decline, he said, "our small food processors were wiped out because they could not supply large supermarket food chains and wholesalers with the big volume and variety they sought."

However, Kerstetter observed, "the pendulum is swinging back. Transportation costs are so high that large buyers in the east are looking to our farmers."

The secretary spoke to a gathering of about 200 people who were attending workshops and exhibits on Pennsylvania agriculture, ranging from the production to the retail phase.

Kerstetter explained that his Department was holding a Pennsylvania Food Day Panorama "because we feel this Commonwealth has a unique relationship with agriculture. We are a rural state and farming has been a major enterprise here since William Penn began carving up his holdings."

For that reason, the Secretary said, it was encouraging to see food buyers looking to Pennsylvania again. He added that the Department is seeking to aid this revival with its direct market program.

"We are working to locate all food buying clubs and to match them with farm outlets," said Kerstetter. "We print farmer-to-consumer directories, listing farmers' markets, roadside stands and 'pick-your-own' farms in various areas of the state. In short, we are trying to improve the business of moving and distributing food."

Cholera quarantine eased

State and federal hog cholera quarantines were lifted from Salem county, N.J. April 5 the U.S. Department of Agriculture reported.

Still under hog cholera quarantine in southern New Jersey are Gloucester, Camden, and Burlington counties, according to officials of USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, (APHIS).

In quarantined counties, swine may move direct to slaughter, but only after a permit is issued by a state or federal animal health official. Swine from counties outside the federal quarantine area are subjected to state requirements.

The entire state of Rhode Island and all but six counties of Massachuestts (Berkshire, Hampshire, Franklin, Hampden, Dukes, and Nantuckett) are likewise quarantined for hog cholera.

Though highly infectious and often fatal to swine, the disease affects no other animals and is harmless to people who eat meat.

APHIS officials said this is the second relaxation of the federal quarantine in New Jersey since the entire state was quarantined on March 2. The first such action came March 16 when the quarantine was reduced to four counties.

Hog cholera in New Jersey swine herds was diagonsed Feb. 24 - the state's first case in slightly over three years. It was only the fourth outbreak in the nation in the past two and a half years. Thus far, all cases in New Jersey have been confined to Gloucester county.

In new Jersey, nine infected and 12 exposed herds comprising about 16,000 hogs have been destroyed as a means of preventing further spread of the disease. In Massachusetts and Rhode Island, six infected and 15 exposed herds containing about 3,300 hogs have been destroyed. Owners are indemnified for swine losses.

A cooperative state-federal hog cholera eradication program was begun in late 1962 with the aim of eliminating the disease in this country. Field teams of state and federal animal health officials are in the outbreak areas, working to contain and wipe out infection.

Eastern's York critical of truckers' strike settlement

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — John C. York, general manager of Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative, stated this week in a letter to William Seidman, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisors, that the recent settlement on the new labor contract between the teamsters union and the trucking industry will have a further serious impact on the cost of producing milk. Dairy farmers are not in any position to absorb higher costs, and, consequently, the dairy industry can very well be facing disaster, said York.

The increase in wages reported in the terms of the contract, which Secretary of Labor W. J. Usery, Jr. helped work out, calls for $1.65 per hour increase in wages, a cost of living formula to reflect the changes in wages, as well as other fringe benefits. It is further reported that this new contract provides between 30 and 36 percent increase in wages over the next three years, noted York.

The dairy leader contends that, with such a target price of at least 130 percent above parity for wages compared to 80 percent of parity as a target price for milk to dairy farmers, some immediate action must be taken. The dairy industry cannot survive with such disparity as exists between its industry and another important industry.

Consequently, York continued, we are calling upon chairman Seidman to schedule a meeting between Secretary of Labor W. J. Usery, Jr., Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz, and representatives of Eastern Milk Producers to discuss this matter with the view in mind of coming to some solution to the problem. The dairy industry is entitled to know what they can likely expect by way of target prices three years in advance, whether or not they are entitled to a cost of living formula, and to what extent appropriate government agencies will provide assistance in developing a legal program that will assure some possibility of a continuous viable dairy industry.

Eastern's general manager stated that the wage increase given labor in the recent truckers' strike settlement will be extremely costly to both dairy farmers and consumers of milk and dairy products.

Whereas, financially depressed dairy farmers and their cooperative organizations have been badgered with extreme scrutiny of recent date, the Administration in Washington, D.C. has apparently given the U.S. Department of Labor a free hand without fear of repraisal in escalating the inflationary price trend, observed York.

This strike settlement will raise prices on everything purchased by dairy farmers and other consumers, reasoned York.

When the housewife is alarmed over the rise in cost of a basket of food, who is she going to blame? Is it going to be the depressed producer down on the farm, his cooperative organizations, the so-called middleman who must pay these inflationary wages from depleted financial resources or labor? questioned the dairy leader.

"Equal rights has taken a serious backward step," charged York. If equality is the rule of the day in America, why not the dairy farmer receiving a like increase in return for his labor? Who is more deserving - one efficient American farmer who now feeds nearly 55 people or those in many segments of our economy who have not begun to equal the farmer's ability to work seven days a week and increase production with so little in monetary return for his efforts? he concluded.

Runoff legislation not as bad as expected

NEW HOLLAND — Land legislation isn't expected to be as bad as was first expected, according to Lisle Dutton of Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative. Nevertheless, the public relations director for the 8,000-member dairy cooperative says "environmentalists are not being realistic ... we're going to have to draw the line somewhere ... Eastern will fight this all the way down through."

He cautions that when a farmer goes out of business today, it's not just a little farm anymore, in many cases.

Legislation as he interprets it calls for cows to be kept out of streams if the land or surface they're on is not a "true" pasture. Pasture is defined as an area which supports desirable vegetation, as opposed to a mere exercise lot which is void of grass.

The dairy coop leader further cautions dairymen about choices they make in manure handling systems. According to Dutton, studies are showing that the problems involved in storing and handling liquid manure far outweigh the benefits. "Conventional systems may be the way to go," he said "store manure under roof and handle it with a front end loader and conventional spreader."

"Be sure you have some real good guidance before you make any decisions," he concluded.

We all need at least 18 milligrams of iron per day for healthy blood. Liver sausage and braunschweiger are good sources of iron. For a portion of your daily requirements, try a liver sausage and tomato sandwich on whole wheat!

Nutrena Controlled Release CLS—
so different, it's patented

Your cattle will like Nutrena Controlled Release CLS and you'll like the benefits behind this new development in liquid supplements. The patented process controls the release of protein-building ammonia nitrogen in the rumen compared with a conventional urea-based liquid supplement. This improves the feeding efficiency of the urea. And, the slow-down means an extra margin of safety from urea toxicity—that's important when self-feeding liquid supplement.

Nutrena Controlled Release CLS liquid supplement—a product of Cargill research. It's great for dairy herds as well as beef cattle on range, pasture, stalks, stubble or in the feedlot.

HYDRA-WIDE PLOW

This new plow is equipped with an on-land, semi-mounted, 2-point hitch, and is available in seven or eight bottoms. The 900 Series has all the basic features of other Hydra-Wides which include hydraulically adjusting cutting width on-the-go from 14 inches to 22 inches, and a 40 inch high clearance for non-clogging. Standard equipment includes: spring trips; 24 inch straight rolling coulters; heavy-duty DMI frogs; 16 inch shares; 12.5 by 15 tail and front furrow wheels; 3 separate double-acting hydraulic cylinders with lines for tail wheel, front furrow wheel, and width adjusting feature; large indicator gauge to show width of cut; plus a tubular steel back-bone brace on main plow beam.

Operational features of the DMI 900 Series Hydra-Wide plow include: a pivot on the tongue section of the on-land hitch that permits the tractor to run the same distance from the furrow regardless of width of cut; a rear tail wheel that is steered when the tractor turns; a free castor front furrow wheel that will not climb out of the furrow; remote hydraulic cylinders with sequencing valves on the tail and front furrow wheels that automatically lower the front then the rear and reverse when raising the plow - all with one control valve on the tractor; a 3rd remote hydraulic cylinder to adjust width of cut; an adjustable hitch for setting plow draft; plus, the tail wheel will lessen landside drag because of the extra weight it carries. The DMI 900 Series Hydra-Wide plow with its on-land hitch is especially suited for large 4-wheel drive, articulated-steered, center-pivoted tractors; because these tractors cannot operate in the furrow and must have all wheels on land. Also, these tractors are usually equipped with extra large tires and-or four-wheel dualed for more traction and less compaction. Additionally, the 900 Series on-land hitch permits owners of standard two-wheel drive tractors to keep dual wheels on both sides of the tractor - plus, the operator does not have to sit on an angle as when plowing with one wheel in the furrow. For further information contact: DMI, Inc., P.O. Box 65, Goodfield, Ill. 61742.

Farm Fans

GOSHEN, Ind. - Three new farm fans have been added to the Agstar line of livestock related products, according to Rene Cripe, sales manager for Star Agri Products. The new line includes two sizes of variable speed fans plus an economical single speed model.

The two new Agstar variable speed fans are matched to the Agstar automatic ventilation system, but they also may be sold separately to fill specific air circulation needs. Model VS-620 has three 20-inch cast aluminum blades which are driven by a one-half horse power motor. The VS-620 may be operated from a modulated thermostat as a variable-speed fan or from a thermostat for single speed operation. Air output is up to 4,280 CFM at zero static pressure.

The new Agstar Model VS-624 is a 24-inch fan that turns at a slower speed where quieter applications are required. It may be operated from either a thermostat for single speed operation or a modulated thermostat for variable speed operation. Air output is approximately the same as the 20-inch Model VS-620. Cripe added that both variable speed fans feature high-strength cast aluminum blades, automatic shutters, storm hoods, and enamel coated steel housings.

High Pressure Sprayer

GOSHEN, Ind. - Star Agri Products, has announced the addition of a new high-pressure sprayer to the Agstar line of livestock equipment. The new Agstar Model D-500 pressure sprayer was introduced to give farmers and ranchers a quick, effective way to handle some of their toughest cleaning problems.

The new sprayer boosts water pressure to 500 pounds per square inch at the nozzle, with a flow rate of two gallons per minute. Water sprayed at that pressure is capable of blasting away the toughest grime, Cripe explained. The sprayer is operated by a 115 volt AC motor that features thermal overload protection. The pump is equipped with a safety valve to protect the unit.

The new D-500 sprayer is simple to move and operate. The unit is equipped with large wheels and a strong steel handle. Also included are brackets for convenient storage of the sprayer's 30-foot hose. As soon as a garden hose is hooked up and the unit is plugged into a 3-way outlet, the sprayer is ready to blast away dirt. A pistol-grip handle controls flow through the 24-inch wand which can be fitted with any of three different nozzle tips.

It is a simple, accurate, and interesting first-hand account of Mr. du Pont's experiences with his gardens, his employees and his neighbors at Longwood and in the local community. It contains many old, nostalgic and previously unpublished photographs of the development of Longwood.

The original text of this narrative was edited by Richard G. Taylor, former editor and publisher of the "Kennett News and Advertiser." Proof that the family farm is remarkably efficient can be seen at "Valley Wide Farms," owned and operated by Ray Coursen and sons of Madisonburg. With the help of Fred Johnson, herdsman, second from right, and a full-time field and machineryman, (not pictured) the team works with 626 acres and nearly 200 head of Holsteins. Last year the Coursen herd finished with 17,963 pounds of milk and 689 of fat on 101 cows. It earned them first place in the state for the second year in a row for herds of more than 100 cows. Johnson, who is in his 23rd year as herdsman for Coursen, says: "... it's all in the way you take care of them — inside and outside." Coursen, right, says: "It takes a lot of hard work and many long hours to operate a dairy farm. For the man willing to work hard there are chances for a good future, providing he has a market and good help." The herd is housed and milked in a 92-stanchion barn. Mrs. Coursen and son, Dick, who takes care of most of the veterinary work, listen in on plans for the coming months.

Sewage usage perused

Questions are often raised about the disposition of human sewage and other solid wastes on agricultural lands. On the surface this makes a great deal of sense. There are many good examples in agriculture to show where such use could be a real benefit. One of the prime examples cited of course is the farmer's use of manure from his livestock operation.

For centuries, a man has used this important by product of animal feeding and it has been a tremendous benefit to our production. Since this is good, since it works, and we know it does, why isn't the same utilization made of human sewage? When you talk to the health people who have studied the problem for many years and who are faced with the responsibilities of holding human disease levels down. Some rather disturbing things come to light.

For example many diseases are species specific. This means that they attack only a particular kind of animal. People diseases can very easily spread from some of these waste materials. Over the years we have deveioped systems and laws and programs that minimize this people to people spread of disease. A good example of this type of disease is typhoid fever, a disease of the alimentary canal of the human. It can easily be transmitted by way of fecal pollution. Some of the virus diseases, hepatitus, cholera, and then there are a number of exotic, tropical diseases that we do not normally have in this area, but could have with the great mobility of our population. Diseases like amoebic dysentary, could spread if we are not careful. For this reason I feel the health people have taken a 'go slow' attitude to many of the good ideas that have been posed for the utilization of our sewage waste and other solid wastes on agricultural crops.

A recent issue of Agricultural Research cites some experimental work by soil scientist Elliot Epstein and agricultural engineer George B. Willson and their associates at Beltsville, Maryland. This system operates at a cost of only $20.00 to $50.00 per dry ton of dewage sludge compared to an estimated $100.00 to $150.00 per ton for incineration. The system used sludge from the Blue Plains Waste Water Treatment Plant, near Washington, D.C. It's mixed with organic matter and a forced air system speeds the composting in such a way that the system could handle the sewage of a city of 200-400 thousand people. The big question is, "Is it truly fail-safe as far as some of the epidemic type diseases are concerned?" The process shows great promise. By forcing air through the sewage and organic matter mixture, temperatures within the mass get up above 140 degrees and often exceed 175 degrees for the entire process. Such temperatures combined with time are sufficient to kill disease agents such as viruses, bacteria, protozoan cysts and eggs of intestinal worms. The question is does it all reach that temperature. Until more answers are forthcoming, the program will be limited to experimental uses where answers to these questions can be had. Once proven safe we're sure that just as in agricultural waste disposal there will be a real benefit to our soils. This kind of research is important, is it agricultural research? Does it benefit just agriculture, or is it for the benefit of all of us? Research can provide the answer and let us hope that it can be continued.

Farmers' meeting held; water planning stressed

Chester-Delaware County Farmers' Association held their annual Spring banquet March 26, at Octorara High School. President Horace Mowrer, Spring City, presided over the meeting.

The feature speaker for the evening was representative Joseph R. Pitts. His topic was "Agriculture and Water Planning." Pitts feels agriculture in Chester County is getting weak and will later depend on other areas for food. He pointed out that agriculture uses less water than industry, but it consumes more. Water in agriculture is absorbed or consumed permanently and is not returned into the system.

DRBC, Delaware River Basin Commission, has major control over the water in Chester County. It has plans to take authority concerning water away from all levels of government. The Commission would control all water and make decisions on who and how it gets used. Estimates for Chester County are enough to irrigate 1300 acres, which is not nearly enough. Planning is necessary for needs in the future. But presently, there is no plan to allow farmers to irrigate in times of drought.

Pitts closed by asking for belief in government, farms, County, the Divine Power, and most of all - ourselves.

Eugene McDowell, regional coordinator, reported on membership - the County has reached a goal of 966 members. Statewide goal is set at 20,200 and Penna. is several hundred short of that goal. PFA has been functioning for 25 years and was the first to come up with legal aid for farmers, FMBAS, and workmen's compensation for farmers.

Our liquid starter can help you save your most precious commodity.

Nothing's more precious at planting time than time. This has been a major reason why so many farmers have switched to liquid starter.

One man can load liquid starter two thirds faster than two men can load dry bulk starter. With liquid, he can load three-and-a-half times faster than one man loading dry bagged fertilizer.

Besides speed and ease of handling, ARCADIAN® liquid offers other advantages at planting time. Pesticides can usually be added to ARCADIAN liquid for a free piggyback application.

And because our liquid fertilizers made with ARCADIAN POLY-N® are rich in polyphosphates, they supply more available nutrients. So your crop gets a head start and you get reduced weed problems, earlier harvests, lower drying costs and greater efficiency from your fertilizer dollars. So if you want a better starting starter, stop in and see us today.

This new formulation is now being produced by us as a high grade row fertilizer for corn. This analysis is very high in phosphorus, low in nitrogen and potassium. Any response to phosphorus will be in the first 2 or 3 weeks after planting. Nitrogen in this analysis is not derived from urea. The phosphorus is largely derived from MAP. In our opinion on Page 9 of the March 27, 1976 issue of the Penna. Farmer is an excellent article on row fertilizer for corn. This motivated us to produce this analysis.

Nematicide treatment increased soybean yields

NEWARK, DEL. — Applying nematicides - pesticides used to kill nematodes - to soybean fields increased soybean yields by 20 percent in preliminary tests, a U.S. Department of Agriculture scientist reported here recently at the regional meeting of the American Phytopathological Society.

Three nematicides, aldicarb, ethoprop, and carbofuran, were broadcast on two Maryland test fields at low and high rates and rototilled into the soil at planting time. The fields were maintained in a corn-soybean rotation and had normal to good crop production records.

The low treatment rate did not produce a significant increase in soybean yield. At the higher rate, however, aldicarb increased soybean yields by about 20 percent. The higher rate of ethoprop and carbofuran each increased yields by about 10 percent.

Scientists of USDA's Agricultural Research Service (ARS) have not yet determined the exact cause, or combination of causes, for these increases. "In effect we may have a cure before we completely understand the cause," said Dr. Raymond V. Rebois, chief of the Nematology Laboratory at ARS' Agricultural Research Center, Beltsville, Md.

"Since the nematode population in the treated plots was reduced as much as 96 percent, the greater yields may be related to direct action of the nematicides in reducing the number of nematodes and consequent crop damage," Dr. Rebois said.

"Other factors, however, may be involved in the increased yields. The nematicides may have killed off insects of other crop pests such as fungi and bacteria; or had a direct effect on the soybean itself by inducing growth or stimulating growth hormones; or aided various nitrogen fixing organisms in the soil which help soybeans capture free nitrogen and boost the plant's growth," Dr. Rebois said.

Other members of the Beltsville research team were Dr. Julius Feldmesser, a research nematologist, and Dr. Robert C. Leffel, a research agronomist.

The nematicides were used experimentally and these results must not be interpreted as endorsing their use by growers, Dr. Rebois said. At present, treatment of soybeans with aldicarb and carbofuran has not been approved by the Environmental Protection Agency.

Although nematodes such as the pinworm, the threadworm and the trichina worm which parasitize animals and people have been known since biblical times, plant parasitic nematodes were not discovered until the eighteenth century. Nematode populations in the soil can stunt, gall and deform a wide variety of crops. They damage root systems, destroy plant tissues and make the plant vulnerable to attacks by bacteria, fungi, viruses and other nematodes. Approximately 10 percent of the U.S. soybean crop is lost each year because of nematodes.

Md. broilers down five percent

Maryland, sixth ranking poultry producer among 21 states involved in broiler production for the national and overseas markets, raised a total of 179,769,000 chickens last year. This figure, according to the Maryland-Delaware Crop Reporting Service, which gathers agricultural statistics for USDA and the Maryland Department of Agriculture, was five percent below the 1974 mark. But production began to rise in mid-1975 and the trend continues.

While Maryland's total production trailed behind that of the two leading producers, Arkansas and Georgia, the chickens grown here weighed an average of 4 pounds each, as compared with 3.5 and 3.7 pounds, respectively, for the former states. And the average price liveweight per pound received by Maryland producers was 27.7 cents, up 6.1 cents over the 1974 average price. However, production costs for all growers were higher than during the previous year.

The Eastern Shore Delmarva peninsula, which includes parts of Delaware and Virginia, is the center for the poultry industry. Delaware growers raised 136,549,000 birds last year. But, their production was down seven percent below the 1974 mark.

Local farmers produce much of the feedstuff used by growers. About 33 million bushels of corn and some 15 million bushels of soybeans are required to feed the millions of chickens produced each year. The feed bill exceeds $245 million annually.

Commenting on the impact of the broiler industry, Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Young D. Hance says that that sector of the agribusiness furnishes employment for about 12,000 persons and generates a payroll of about $75 million annually. It has been Maryland's leading agricultural enterprise for several years, followed closely by the dairy industry. Annual U.S. consumption of poultry has soared from 8.7 pounds per person to 37 pounds per person in the past 25 years.

Promotions "beefed-up" to curb market slump

CHICAGO, Ill. — For the first time in almost a year beef has been placed in the USDA's "plentiful" category. Retail prices are down about 20 cents per pound from last summer. All this is good news for consumers.

"Unfortunately, for cattlemen the news is not so good," says John L. Huston, Vice President, Beef Program, National Live Stock and Meat Board. "As the beef supply mix continues to shift back to more fed-beef, cattle and wholesale beef prices have declined drastically."

Huston said the Meat Board's Beef Industry Council and state beef promotion groups have stepped up promotion efforts to stimulate movement of beef during this supply bulge.

Taking direct action in the marketplace, the Council is helping to coordinate a major promotion designed to reach consumers in 20 Eastern Seaboard cities. Co-funded by the Iowa Beef Industry Council, Nebraska Beef Industry Foundation, South Dakota Beef Council and the Texas Cattle Feeders Assn., a three-week radio campaign will stress the points "beef is plentiful now . . . beef is a good buy . . . beef gives you a lot for your money."

Retailers in the area are being contacted and urged to tie-in with the radio promotion and newspaper food editors are being brought up to date on the supply situation. "The food editors are especially important," notes Huston. "Through them we can reach consumers with the message of more fed-beef being available and that this is an ideal opportunity to pick up that extra package of beef for the freezer."

The Meat Board is also working with the USDA on this situation. Much of the current "Food Market Alert," put out by the USDA and distributed to food retailers, is devoted to beef, urges increased merchandising efforts, and recommends the Board as a source for merchandising aids. Also the Agricultural Marketing Service is putting special emphasis on beef and is alerting its regional offices to do the same.

The Council's ongoing national advertising package, sponsored by state-national funding, features four-day-a-week television advertising in New York, Philadelphia, Chicago and Los Angeles — the four top markets nationally. National radio advertising with Paul Harvey is also utilized.

"If this price decline is not reversed, producers and feeders could be forced into making decisions that will restrict beef supplies later this year and into the next few years," says Huston. "The beef industry's promotion programs should help provide the necessary impetus to relieve the market pressure and restore a viable supply-demand relationship."

State parks to host Easter sunrise services

HARRISBURG - Easter sunrise services will be held in 15 Pennsylvania State Parks on Sunday, April 18, according to William C. Forrey, director of State Parks for the Department of Environmental Resources.

Forrey said that barring any severe late snow or ice storms, family camping facilities will be open in nine of the 15 Parks where services will be held.

Parks with campgrounds which will have sunrise services are: Chapman, Warren County; Codorus, York County; Cook Forest, Clarion County; Crooked Creek, Armstrong County; Gifford Pinchot, York County; Prince Gallitzin, Cambria County; Pymatuning, Crawford County; Raccoon Creek, Beaver County; and Ryerson Station, Greene County.

Other State Parks which will have sunrise services are: Big Pocono, Monroe County; Little Buffalo, Perry County; Maurice K. Goddard, Mercer County; Shikellamy, Northumberland County; Samuel S. Lewis, York County; and Warriors Path, Bedford County.

The services are conducted by local clergymen in the area of the Parks.

Cherries to be sold

More than 19 million pounds of frozen red tart cherries held in a reserve pool under a federal marketing order will be offered for sale to cherry handlers in April, the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) announced.

George Dever, Fruit and Vegetable official with USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service, said the Cherry Administrative Board which operates under the marketing order will release the 19.16 million pounds for sale from April 15-26.

Under the marketing order, the reserve pool is used to even out periods of excessive and short supplies, Dever explained. In years of excess production, cherries may be placed in reserve in a storable form, usually frozen. This reserve can then be released to supplement production during short-crop years or to increase available supplies to satisfy the current market demand. With tart cherries moving well in marketing channels this year, the board decided to release the entire reserve to satisfy the demand.

The red tart cherry marketing order, initiated in 1971, covers cherries grown in Michigan, New York, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Virginia, West Virginia, and Maryland.

KERR McGEE CHEMICAL CORP.

(PREVIOUSLY THE BAUGH COMPANY)

Manufacturers of dry homogeneous fertilizers, as well as one of the major producers of superphosphate on the east coast of U.S.A. Basic in phosphate and potash. We own and operate three manufacturing plants located in two states - located in Philadelphia, PA and Baltimore and Cambridge, MD.

With companies such as Advanced Ag and Brookside Lab., you know the importance of gypsum in conditioning the soil. Superphosphate is about half gypsum. Since we produce superphosphate, we then use it as extensively as possible in all our fertilizer analyses. Because of formulation, 10-20-20, for instance has very little (if any) superphosphate; but, 5-10-10 contains nearly one-half ton. Superphosphate is 12 percent sulfur as well as rendering available such other nutrients as calcium, magnesium, sodium, aluminum, barium, iron, boron, copper, zinc, and manganese. These trace elements are not found in any other phosphate source. Consequently, buying a blended product cheaply priced may not be so cheap after all.

Your Kerr McGee representatives are well trained; having contacts with state universities as well as chemical companies to research your problems and aid in your farm management.

Tree seedling sales slated

The Chester Conservation District, in conjunction with several area groups, are sponsoring their annual Tree Seedling Sale. The project - began three years ago in Chester County and has grown bigger each year. This year the district hopes to sell a total of 40,000 trees in various locations throughout the county. "Maynard King, Executive Conservationist of Montgomery County and Marshall Haws, Executive Conservationist of Chester County get together and make plans the previous fall, for the sale each year," explained project coordinator, Betty Dunkel. "This way we avoid overlapping sales and can order seedlings at a better price," she said.

According to Maynard King, the seedlings will be two to three years old - there may be a few four year blue spruce. We'll probably have Austrian Pine, White Pine and Blue Spruce, 6 to 15 inches tall. The stock does vary according to what is most available in cost and quality.

Groups involved so far this year are the Great Valley High School Ecology Club, chaired by Dawn Schmidt, who will be selling at their usual location in the Exton Mall, north side, upper level. The Guthriesville Fire Co. will be at the Downingtown Center, Harold Thompson is in charge. The Procrastinator's Garden Club of Exton, Mrs. Loretta DiZillo, chairman, will be at the Marchwood Shopping Center. In Paoli, at the Paoli Shopping Center, will be the Monday Afternoon Club of Malvern sponsored by their Conservation Committee, under the direction of Mrs. Kenneth Mateer.

Seedlings will be priced at .15 cents each, $1.50 for 10, $6.00 for 50 and $12.00 for 100. Buyers are urged by the groups to bring their own bucket or other container for the seedlings. It's important to keep the roots moist.

The Conservation District, located in West Chester, coordinates the sale with the sponsoring groups, orders seedlings, helps to site sales, places advertising in local papers prior to the sale, prints up planting instructions to hand out with the seedlings and generally assists wherever needed.

The District's goals in this project are to encourage the treatment of erodable areas by planting trees. Trees will establish adequate cover and prevent erosion of valuable soil. They are also interested in reforestation of certain areas where trees have been removed by harvesting, fire or other means. The groups that do the selling, retain the profits from the sale to further their own goals, which are usually conservation oriented, thus, they further District goals as well.

Since the sale usually comes within a few days of Arbor Day, which is the last Friday in April each year - this year falls on April 30 - it brings to mind the inscription on a monument erected in memory of Julius S. Morton, the Father of this holiday. It said, "Other holidays repose upon the past; Arbor Day proposes for the future." What better time to plant some trees - Arbor Day, in a Bicentennial year during April, the most environmentally busy month of the year? Please direct questions regarding the sale to, Betty Dunkel, Conservation District, 696-5126.

Mechanical tomato pickers promising

UNIVERSITY PARK — The future looks bright for mechanized harvesting of the six million dollar tomato crop grown annually for the canning industry in Pennsylvania. Already nine tomato varieties have been found suitable for harvesting by machine. Last summer, some 30 machines were used to harvest tomatoes in the Commonwealth.

Mechanized harvesting of tomatoes has been analyzed for five years by plant scientists with the Agricultural Experiment Station at Penn State University. William Hepler, professor of plant breeding, said the two major factors limiting the harvesting of tomatoes by machine in Pennsylvania have been a lack of suitable varieties and a short harvesting season, six to eight weeks, compared with states such as California.

Prior to 1970, no tomato varieties were suitable for machine harvesting under Pennsylvania conditions. In contrast, since 1968 over 95 percent of the tomato acreage grown in California for processing has been harvested by machine.

Hepler declared that costs of production must be reduced for local growers and processors to remain competitive in the national market. The single major cost of production for the grower is labor for harvesting the crop by hand, he claimed.

"A major objective of the tomato mechanization research program at Penn State has been to evaluate suitable varieties and methods of planting for machine harvesting over a short six to eight week period," he stated.

Since 1970, Hepler and associates have compared yields and harvests from transplanted seedlings and from direct seeding. The studies all indicated that direct seeded tomatoes need more days to reach maturity for harvest than the field transplants.

The Penn Staters found that direct seeding should be made as early as possible and should be completed before transplanting starts in any one production area. They also learned that transplants would give best yields during the first four to six weeks of harvest, followed by harvesting of fruits from direct-seedling plantings in the last three weeks.

Normal hand harvesting of three pickings was compared with once-over machine harvesting. Of the total potential yield, more tomatoes were harvested by machine than by hand.

From these trials, nine tomato varieties are now recommended for machine harvesting in Pennsylvania. They are Chef, VF134, Chico III, Merit, C28, Dorchester, Potomac, ARC, and Red Rock. These varieties have the highest percentage of tomatoes ripe at one time, essential for machine harvesting. Also, these varieties are firm enough to withstand damage in the shaking and sorting operations and in bulk handling.

In all trials, Hepler said, populations of 8700 transplants were set out per acre. Rows were five feet apart with plants set one foot apart in the rows. Direct-seeded plantings were made at the rate of two to five seeds per clump with clumps every nine inches in the row. The rows were five feet apart. A clump of two to five plants, it was determined, behaves the same as a single plant. Field seeding machines have been developed for precise clump planting. Harvesters are set for five foot row widths.

The outlook for mechanized harvesting of Pennsylvania - grown tomatoes for canning was featured in a recent issue of "Science in Agriculture," the quarterly magazine of the Agricultural Experiment Station at Penn State. The research work was supported in part by Fair Funds administered by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

COMBINE DRUM PICKUP

A new MF 67 drum pickup has been introduced for use with Massey-Ferguson combines. It fits all MF Quick-Attach tables and is available in two sizes, 105 in. and 129 in.

Featuring flexible tines that leave rocks behind, the new drum pickup is available with an optional variable speed V-belt drive that can be adjusted for different combine and crop conditions, especially in harvesting short crops or heavier areas. The variable speed option permits faster ground speed of up to 6 mph with big combines.

Rubber mounts for the flexible tines make replacement and repairs easy. The flexible mainframe allows the pickup to float over uneven ground and follow contours. Two standard pneumatic gauge wheels take the bumps out of cracked, rocky ground.

The extra wide working widths of the pickups make it easier to take sharp windrow corners. An adjustable grain-saver pan catches loose grain.

Included as standard equipment are an adjustable windguard with plastic tines that cannot damage the threshing cylinder and safety shielding. Available as an accessory is a pickup centering kit for larger tables.

Imports quota issued

WASHINGTON — Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz announced that 1976 imports subject to the Meat Import Law are estimated below the trigger level for quota imposition under the Law.

Secretary Butz said participating countries have agreed on essential elements of the export restraint program which will limit imports to 1,223 million pounds. Formal agreements with participating countries are expected to be concluded shortly.

Public Law 88-482 enacted in August 1964 provides that if yearly imports of certain meats — primarily frozen beef — are estimated to equal or exceed 110 percent of an adjusted base quantity, quotas are to be imposed on the imports of these meats. The adjusted base quantity for 1976 is 1,120.9 million pounds, and the trigger level is 1,233 million pounds. The Secretary said 1976 imports probably would exceed the trigger level were it not for the expected arrangements with supplying countries.

The Secretary said that import prospects will be reviewed quarterly. The next estimate of 1976 imports of meat subject to the Meat Import Law will be made late in June and announced on or before July 1.

Pancake Breakfast slated

Plans are well under way for the second annual Sausage and Pancake Breakfast sponsored by the Paradise Rotary Club. To be held April 17 at the Bird-in-Hand Fire House, the proceeds will go toward the numerous community projects of the Club. These include several roadside picnic areas, Rotary Leaders Camp, the purchase of a van for the Referral Voluntary Services of Lancaster and others.

Club President Leroy Shenk announced the appointment of Paul Smucker, Bird-in-Hand, as chairman of the breakfast committee. Others serving include Ben Stoltzfus, Intercourse, and Dr. Robert Graybill, Lancaster. Smucker stated however, that "this is an effort of more than a three man committee ... and we're having the wives of club members on hand too, as waitresses."

For $2 adults will have all the pancakes and sausages they can eat. The price for children under twelve is $1.25. Breakfast will be served even beginning at 5:30 a.m. for the benefit of the trout fishermen who want to eat and get out to their favorite spot along the stream. Then serving will continue until noon, this accomodating not only the early risers but those who choose to sleep in and make theirs a "brunch." Tickets need not be purchased in advance.

A. L. Herr mechanic completes training

Jerry Ferguson, a serviceman for A. L. Herr & Bro., 312 Park Ave., Quarryville, recently attended a week-long service school on agricultural and utility equipment sponsored by J I Case Company in Syracuse, New York.

Case Company is using king-size mobile vans to bring the latest ag tractor testing and training equipment to localized centers throughout the U.S. and in Canada. The new localized training concept allows instructors to place emphasis on equipment and applications unique to a particular area.

Farm equipment dealer personnel attending the localized training centers have an opportunity to work with engines, transmissions, power trains and other components. Mock-ups of complete hydraulic and electrical systems, cutaways and audio-visual aids allow the serviceman to increase his proficiency in diagnosing problems that may develop with farm equipment.

Tax Returns Of Unemployed

Don't decide there's no reason to file an income tax return just because you're out of work. If your unemployment covers several months, chances are that income taxes were overwithheld while you were still working. Also, if income is under $8,000, you may be eligible for the earned income credit of up to $400, any excess of which over the taxes owed is refunded in cash, but only if you file a return.

Pack some extra protein into that next peanut butter sandwich by substituting a slice of grilled bologna or salami for the jelly. It's extra tasty and, oh, so nutritious.

USED HARVESTORE
LIKE NEW

This silo & unloader is only 1 year old. It will cost approximately $4,000 to take down, move & set back up on your farm. We want $20,000 for the silo & Goliath unloader. To buy one like it today would cost over $30,000. That leaves a savings of over $6,000, enough to buy the equipment necessary to fill the silo. We are also selling a Super 717 NH chopper with corn head & pick-up head $2850 and a Gehl chuck wagon with extra long body & double tandem running gear $2850. All like new. If you are putting up a Harvestore this year, don't pass up this opportunity.

ELECTRONIC CROP STIMULATING SERVICE

Electrical storms improve crops. Seeds treated electronically quickens germination, great difference in cold weather. Improves stooling in alfalfa, small grains; grows much bigger roots, more good ears per stalk and up to 3 percent more protein; required less fertilizer, improves yields especially in adverse weather.

An Indianne treating machine will be at the Edgar M. Martin farm on April 6 and 7, maybe also longer, on Orlan Road, first farm direct west of Victor Weaver's Poultry Processing Plant which is just south of New Holland Sales Stables. You can bring seeds in ahead, pick up later. Make check to Dr. C. R. Corson when you bring seeds in. Distant customers who want to take seeds along home, get first privilege.

Rates are $10 per bu. corn, $15 for alfalfa, clover; $5 for oats, beans. We can mix in Agriserum, Lactobase and Basic H. at same time. Doc said it should be so much better.

Agriserum promotes bullions of fertilizer factories per acre - earthworms. They also make soil spongy for holding moisture. Lactobase helps you grow your own minerals cheaper, better, both soil minerals and feed minerals.

Basic H makes other liquids penetrate better like above products on seed. In sprays, it reduces need for chemical by 50 percent. Improves soil texture, makes nutrients available. All four for only about $5.00 an acre corn.

Mrs. Johnson pours coffee in the kitchen of her spacious farmhouse.

Her warmth and friendliness are evident to any visitor to Mrs. Johnson's home.

Homestead Notes

At the conclusion of her presidency, Mrs. Johnson was given this copper milk bucket filled with dried flowers.

Solanco farm woman active in community affairs

By SALLY BAIR
Feature Writer

"Farm women are the most energetic, hard working, community-minded women I know!" Mrs. Dorothy Johnson speaks these words with great enthusiasm and with characteristic frankness adds, "Of course, I'm prejudiced."

Dorothy Johnson, St. Catherine Drive, Quarryville, retired from her two year stint as county Farm Women president in November. But her great interest in the devotion to Farm Women will always be a part of her life.

She recalled that she became a member of Society 15 in 1955 when someone dropped out and she was invited to join. She said, "At that time I didn't go anyplace much, except to church. I figured my job was at home. I helped out in the fields, husking corn, helping with the tobacco and the tomatoes, and I milked the cows every day, twice a day."

But she did join and says, "I discovered educational programs and sociability with the Farm Women. I really liked the things I learned. It was a process of learning, of becoming acquainted with things. And the Farm Women did really good works in the community. Our Farm Women had always helped with the Quarryville community fair after it got started."

A county president can be quite busy with committee meetings, visiting societies within the county and attending state and county conventions. But through all her years in this active role, Mrs. Johnson says proudly, "I hardly ever missed a milking. Most of the time I could do the morning milking before I left, and we got a man to fill in."

Her late husband, Carl, encouraged her in her efforts. She said, "I didn't think I had time for it. But I really did enjoy it and I learned a lot."

She said she had never taken the time to travel to other counties, so that aspect was one she thoroughly enjoyed.

But the highlight of her two year's president, she said, was making friends. She said, "I met some of the loveliest people. There are so many frendships which you make and keep, and it really means something to me. After all, friends are really what life is all about. New places come and go, but friends are the most wonderful things."

As county president, Mrs. Johnson had a lot of opportunity to make friends among the 1,000 members in the county's 31 societies. She also saw much of the good works which come from the societies. She cited specifically the work at Harrisburg State Hospital, Hamburg State Hospital and locally at Conestoga View which two groups visit every month to play games and visit with the residents. She said, "If there weren't Farm Women Societies, there would be a lot of dark corners."

The societies have changed a little over the years, she said, "Now there are more than just farm women who are members; the groups are more versatile. And they seem to join younger.

"But the basic quality of their community work remains the same. It may be wider in scope because travel is easier," she added.

On the state level Mrs. Johnson has been chairman of the legislative committee for three years. One change has been that resolutions have been discontinued because of a feeling that they really were not effective.

She said, "I was instrumental in getting names and address of legislators and their districts to each county president. Individual letter writing is the most effective way to communicate with the legislators. But women must write letters themselves, not use form letters. One aim is to get women more active in letter writing."

Mrs. Johnson was honored as Farm Woman of the year in 1970 when she was president of Society 15, one example of the esteem in which she is held.

Mrs. Johnson is a native of North Carolina, but her family moved to Pennsylvania when she was five years old. She said her brother had read in geography books about Pennsylvania - that the land was beautiful and level. She said he was anxious to move here "so the family wouldn't have to work so hard anymore."

Her father knew a realtor in this state so he came and bought a 174 acre farm near Wakefield. She recalled the leaving North Carolina was tearful because her mother had served as midwife to the community, traveling by horseback, buggy or walking, and as the family traveled to the train station people begged them not to leave.

The family settled onto their new farm and the children attended Plum Hill School, where Mrs. Johnson recalls a heartbreaking first day. She said the four children in her family had always eaten together from one large basket, but the children teased them unmercifully and little Dorothy went home saying she didn't feel well. She told her father she would not return until she had a lunch kettle, but he, or course, made her turn around immediately. However, very quickly, lunch kettles were found for each child.

Her husband had been a native of West Virginia, but his family moved into a home close to her childhood home. When they first married they lived in Parkerville, near Kennett Square and lived in an apartment in a farm house.

After four years they decided to return to Lancaster County and farm. They bought the farm where Mrs. Johnson now lives and moved in on March 17, 39 years ago. "in a snow storm."

They had bought the farm, lock, stock and dairy cattle, so the very first evening they had to set to work milking the 27 dairy cows by hand. Mrs. Johnson said neither she nor her husband had ever milked for as a young girl it had been her job to pump water for her father's 40 head of Guernseys, some steers and hogs.

She recalls the first few days on the farm as being "just awful. The milkman came at 5:00, so we had to get up at three o'clock. Our hands swelled up, because we weren't used to the work."

However, she related happily, "Our hands became accustomed to it. I really like the farm - it was monotonous living in the apartment."

The Johnsons built the herd to 50 milking cows, and three years ago installed a pipeline milker. She said, "We were really a team."

Mrs. Johnson's husband became ill last spring and in the summer her grandson, Douglas Hershey, a senior at

Farm Homes preserve 18th century history

By MELISSA PIPER

For the past two weeks, I have been driving across the countryside here in Lancaster County, to take pictures of older farm homes, some of which have survived almost 300 years. It has been quite interesting to note the architecture and handwork which went into building some of these detailed houses.

I was amazed at the beautiful fireplaces which graced many rooms and how well they had been preserved either by careful consideration of by years of hiding behind walls of plaster.

The antiques which also line many of the homes were interesting to view for a number of them had been hand-crafted here in the county or in nearby villages. The detailed workmanship of these toys, dishes and furniture was very surprising, especially since many of the craftsmen had few tools with which to work.

Many of the older homes which dot our area reflect the builder's heritage and it is evident that pride surfaced during the construction. German-styled doors and hinges are still in use in several county homes with Christian doors, cathedral cupboards and church style window designs all reflecting the spiritual values held in high esteem by the early settlers.

While many of the homes have been passed down through generations of the same family, others have been sold time after time with new tenants each adding a bit of their own creative touches to the interior decor.

Historians in the area have noted that each home although many times built by the same contractor, had its own peculiar design and was distinct in its novel design certainly not like the mass produced houses we view today.

The families who have taken much care and interest in restoring these homes must be commended, for they have preserved a bit of americana and history which is unique to this area. For in few other states is such a heritage kept alive, as in the stately farm homes of southeastern Pa.

Tucked against the hillsides and along flowing streams, the homes seem as if time has stood still for if the electrical wires and poles were stripped away and the farm machinery and vehicles hidden, the farms would probably look much like they did centuries ago.

Solanco woman

Solanco, moved in to help with the work. After her husband's death in December, Douglas chose to stay on and help. Obviously he is a great source of companionship and they share a joyous spirit of comraderie.

Dorothy Johnson is a busy farm woman, both on the farm and in the community, working as a member of Society 15. When asked about hobbies she laughed and said, "I don't sew." But then she admits that she did sew when her five children were small, "out of necessity." She has four daughters - in Oklahoma, Virginia, Avondale and Mrs. John Hershey, in Mechanics Grove. A son, Carl Jr., lives in Lampeter. There are 12 grandchildren.

She said, "I like to cook and clean, but mostly I like to read." Her principle source of reading is the Bible. She says she needs to read it to prepare for the adult church school class she teaches at Wesley Methodist, Quarryville RD2. She also is leader of the United Methodist Women's group which has taken two years to study the book of Romans. She said, "Most of the time I study. I don't have a lot of time to spend reading, but I like reading the Bible because I always discover new things in the Scripture. It is a whole new awakening."

Very modestly she adds, "I've written a few poems." Her poetic mind shows itself when she talks about her life on the farm. One of her great pleasures on the farm had been looking out her bedroom window and having "my own little piece of sky." And when she looks out her living room window she says, "The land really does touch the sky."

She also has very deep concerns about farm life. She said, "I hope there will always be room for family farms. It is a very satisfying life. It offers a protective life for children, and helps them grow and makes them work.

"I wouldn't have wanted to raise children anywhere else. Things were hard earlier on the farm, but we were young and it was fun.

"It offers a lot of satisfaction. The soil is a trust just as our lives are a trust to do something with whatever our lot is and built on it."

The analogy is good for everyone, but Mrs. Johnson has put her philosphy to work through deed. Her personal trials and sorrow did not deter her from her public duties as county Farm Women president.

Her courage and positive outlook are an inspiration.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Each year I look forward to the end of March when I plant my garden. It is such a nice feeling to have everything safely tucked into neat double rows and just sit back and wait until the first green peas and lettuce and radishes poke their heads above the ground. Then comes the busy times which require hoeing.

This year Cindy helped me put in five pound of peas, plus beets, swiss chard and parsley. She was disappointed that I put in two pounds of onions while she made our evening meal as she wanted to help with this job too.

Some of my neighbors and some of my relatives planted their gardens in February, during a warm spell, and I'm wondering if all of their seeds will germinate come April. Guess we'll just wait and see.

Often we pass up great opportunities to meet new people when we remain silent. How often have you stood in line with strangers waiting for your turn or sat for hours until some form of transportation arrived? The time passes much more quickly if we share interests and experiences with others and we gain insight into other ways of life beside our own.

Some of the most memorable experiences of my youthful travels are the talks I had with folks enroute. The Ohio farmer on the train to California, the sailor on the bus to Atlantic City and the couple about to move to Israel in the 1940's. They attended a recreational school in Vermont with me.

I'm not recommending that we force ourselves on others but an opening remark about the weather or other small talk will readily tell you if the stranger is responsive. Everyone needs a quiet time to plan and think and we should respect this. But why be lonely when it isn't necessary?

Candy Easter Eggs

2 eggs
3 sticks butter

Beat these two until real creamy then add 1½ cups peanut butter.

Then add 2 pounds powdered sugar. Mix until well blended and creamy. Set mixture in refrigerator to chill. When chilled form into eggs and return to refrigerator.

Melt 1 box semi-sweet choc. Melt ¼ block household wax, dip egg when chilled, when too long at room temperature, they become very soft and hard to handle.

Variation: Omit 1½ cups of peanut butter and add 1 more cup of powdered sugar plus 2 tsp. vanilla. Also very delicious.

A no cook recipe.

New Furnishings Fresh From the Sewing Machine

Rooms get the "blahs" sometimes and many of us will admit to an occasional desire to throw out everything and begin all over. That may not be possible, but, completely new looks can be achieved inexpensively — sewing is the key!

Novel curtains, bedspreads, tablecloths, pillow covers and draperies can work wonders. If sewing skills aren't up to making slipcovers for worn upholstered pieces, a washable fabric throw cover can brighten, too.

When shopping for fabrics, visualize how colors and patterns will look in a room. Choose launderable fabrics for easy care, suggests The Soap and Detergent Association. Test for hang-, drape- and durability. Consider what the fabric will be used for — stiff materials aren't meant for ruffles; thin fabric needs a backing if used for bedspreads.

Cost is another factor. Ginghams, dotted Swiss, cottons and blends are budget-minders. Corduroy and denim are good choices in heavier fabrics. Sheets are frequently good buys and can often be turned into new fashions with little seaming due to their width. More expensive are the fancy sheers, screen prints and fake furs.

Creating a new look for a room can be fun and rewarding. And for those who are hesitant about sewing, why not enroll in a workshop in your community that is offered by schools, fabric shops or the Extension Service.

FTC Asks For Consumers Comments on Specific Care Labeling Questions

The Federal Trade Commission has proposed revisions to the present Care Labeling Rule which not applies only to textile wearing apparel and piece goods used to make wearing apparel. The FTC is asking for consumers' comments especially on the following questions:

- Should care labels be permanently attached to suede and leather garments such as coats and skirts?
- Should retailers of piece goods, yarn, carpets, and rugs be required to hand out care labels or instructions to consumers; or does a better method of distributing labels or instructions to consumers of such items exist? Or, should such labels or instructions be available only on request at the retail counter?
- Will standardized terms on care lables make the labels more easily understood?
- Should bleaching and ironing instructions be included with every washing instruction?
- Should both dry cleaning and washing instructions be included for certain items which can be safely cleaned by either method? Will this be of economic benefit to consumers? Will this proposal help eliminate overly cautious instructions, for example, instructions on a garment which can be safely washed saying "dry clean only"?
- If yarn is used to make items of wearing apparel and household furnishings in the same manner as piece goods, should yarn also be included in this new proposal? Does yarn need regular care instructions to avoid damage or substantial impairment to finished items made from such years because of improper care? If so, why or why not?
- In the care of yarn only, is it sufficient for the manufacturer to transmit care instructions to the ultimate consumer on the package or wrapper containing the yarn? Or should care instructions be on a label and given out as is presently done with piece goods?
- Do carpets and rugs need regular care instructions to avoid damage or substantial impairment because of improper care? Why or why not?

Send written comments on any or all of the above questions by April 26, 1976 to: Assistant Director for Rulemaking, "Care Labeling", Federal Trade Commission, Washington, D.C. 20580.

PFA ladies sponsor Heritage Trail Tour

By MELISSA PIPER

LANCASTER — During the early 18th century, many immigrants growing dissatisfied with city living, pushed westward from the Philadelphia area to settle near the rich fertile farmlands in Lancaster County.

Incorporating stone, hand-mixed mortar and stout logs, the settlers built homes for their families - the architecture of many in keeping with their native traditions.

Many of these homesteads still dot the area and while the structures have been altered throughout the ensuing 250 years, much of the original builder's influence still remains.

In keeping with the theme of the bicentennial and the history of Lancaster County's older farm homes, the ladies of the Lancaster County Farmer's Association (associated with the Pa. Farmer's Association) will be sponsoring their second Heritage Trail Home Tour on April 21. Guests will be touring six homes in the Strasburg - Millersville area which contain a legacy of americana and farming history. The following article deals with three of the homes to be toured - their history and the people who have begun to share their continuance.

Henry and Marcia Barley relax in their remodeled living room complete with arched fireplace.

Fireplaces come from Philadelphia

One of the oldest homes on the Heritage Trail is the Henry Barley residence off Donerville Road near Millersville. For the past four years Marcia and Henry Barley have been working to restore their 18th century home to its original state - their most complicated task being to expose the numerous arched fireplaces which were myriad in the home.

A picturesque stone farm house, the Barley home was originally constructed about 1760 by a member of the Herr family who settled near Millersville. The architecture was similar to most contracted homes of the era in that hand-hewn oak logs served for the floorboards and low wide doors gave entrance to the various rooms in the house. Still in evidence are the German strap hinges and locks on the doors.

Five corner or arched fireplaces were in the 18th century dwelling and have been uncovered and restored by the Barleys. Unique to this area, the fireplaces were the type used in the homes of Philadelphia families and city townhouses. It is believed that the fireplaces were copied from those of the eastern cities for the residents who made Lancaster County their new home. The Barleys have four fireplaces downstairs and one in the master bedroom. Four of them have currently been exposed and redone.

The Millersville area couple admit that removing the plaster and restoring the fireplaces was the most tiresome job they undertook in reclaiming their farm home which was purchased in 1967.

"We've tried to do each room at a time," Henry Barley noted, "it hasn't been easy but such an undertaking is never as easy as it looks."

Antique Collectors

The Barleys enjoy collecting antiques and frequent many of the local sales and auctions in search of toys, dishes and furniture. Marcia has purchased a number of antique iron toys and displays them on the windowsills of her remodeled living room. Many of the dishes are stored in an original corner cupboard that graces one wall of the main living room area.

Kathryn Shertzer takes a break from work and relaxes in the corner of the newly remodeled basement family room.

The Barley home was constructed with small niches along some of the walls and the couple has adorned these tiny shelves with collectors items and period antiques.

While hoping to keep most of the hardwood floors intact, the couple has carpeted some areas where the oak beams had worn considerably or where cracks had begun to widen. With careful selections in colors, patterns and textures however, the couple have kept the historical view of the home close to its original state.

Along with renovating their home, the Barleys farm about 112 acres raising 500 head of steers, 40,000 pullets and 25 acres of tobacco.

Henry Barley is a member of the PFA and the Penn Manor Young Farmers. Marcia is a Sunday School teacher at the Stehman United Methodist Church and devotes much of her time to their three children, Jeff - 9, Laurie - 7 and Becky - 4.

Along Walnut Hill Road

Along the twisted and winding road labeled Walnut Hill, a few miles from the Barley homestead, is a two century-old farm owned by the Melvin Shertzer family. Also to be included on the Heritage Trail, the Shertzer home - which dates back to 1760 - is a detailed example of the architecture and woodworking of the early settlers to the county.

For the past four years, the Shertzers have worked carefully in renovating, remodeling and refurbishing their home. Plaster was torn from the ceilings to unveil oak beams, fireplaces were exposed from walls and stone walls were repointed.

One of the most time consuming jobs of the remodeling process was to expose and restore a huge walk-in fireplace located in the basement of the Shertzer home. Careful sandblasting and new mortar was utilized to beautify the structure which constituted almost one entire wall of the basement.

The basement fireplace was kept in its rugged decor but the Shertzers have added the modern touches of carpeting and contemporary furniture to turn the basement into a comfortable and cozy family room. Antique furniture pieces and collectables still grace the room and the woodwork has remained in its original texture giving the family center a historical but "lived-in" atmosphere.

In the farm family's spacious kitchen, another fireplace was revamped for use. Combined with dark wood cabinets, a slab table with benches and antiques, the kitchen has taken on the "colonial air."

The living and dining rooms have been restored to their original state by the use of "Williamsburg" colors and interiors. The living room has been painted an off-white and trimmed with green along the chair railing and cabinets. The dining area was redone in a pewter blue and is decorated with numerous antique dishes and collectables.

The Shertzers have bought many antiques while traveling to their summer home in Sullivan County but are also proud of the furniture handed down by their respective families. One piece especially dear to the family is a desk which was constructed by Abe Herr in 1850.

Both the Shertzers (Melvin

Family campgrounds open for season

HARRISBURG - William C. Forrey, Director of the Department of Environmental Resources' Bureau of State Parks, said today that family campgrounds in 54 State Parks will open officially Friday, April 9, for the summer camping season.

Forrey said fees for the 6,902 sites will remain the same as last year $3 per night for campsites in areas with modern sanitary facilities and $2 per night for sites in campgrounds with cold water pumps and pit toilets.

No reservations are offered for the 1976 camping season and all sites will be made available on a first come, first served basis.

Forrey said that since only 2.8 per cent of the people camping in State Parks in 1975 came with a reservation and since heaviest use of the reservation system was confined to only three holiday weekends, it was decided to drop the reservation system this year and return to the first come, first served operation.

"Although the reservation system did not cost the Department any money," Forrey said, "it did require time on the part of our employes and it does not make sense to commit that time to a program which the vast majority of campers apparently do not feel they need.

"Considering required cuts in staff and budget, it makes sense to us to assign our manpower to duties in the Parks and camping areas which relate more directly to a pleasurable experience for as many people as possible."

Additional information on State Park camping is available by writing Camping, Office of Public Information, Department of Enviromental Resources, Box 1467, Harrisburg, Pa. 17120.

DIET AND HEART DISEASE

What s the latest on heart disease—especially the concern that diet may have some influence in the development of atherosclerosis?

At a recent food writers conference sponsored by the National Dairy Council four nutrition experts spoke on this subject Their comments were illuminating and pointed up again the complexities of heart disease and the problem of pinning down causes and ways in which the disease might be prevented or at least delayed until late in life

THE REAL concern over heart disease is, of course, not so much in the case of the person who lives to a reasonable old age having enjoyed many years of living As a physician, I have to remind you that there are worse ways to die after an otherwise healthy life than from a heart attack

The concern is for the so-called premature death from heart disease that strikes so many younger men and some women

Referring to the lack of simple answers to heart disease and the tendency of some scientists to recommend dietary changes for everyone, Shiela (sic) Craig Mitchell M D of the National Heart and Lung Institute had this to say

"NUTRITION health and heart disease are complex problems Thhere are no simple solutions to complex problems I do not recommend that all Americans change their diets to a standardized one There is no one rule for everyone People and their needs are unique I do feel nutritionists should be part of the medical team '

Cautioning that people should not too quickly adopt the idea of more fiber in the diet Ralph A Nelson, M D of the Mayo Clinic said More dietary fiber might be beneficial However the health claims made for fiber in current popular books are over-simplified and not supported by facts I find such books 'irritating '

"IT IS easy to add more fiber to the diet—certain grain foods fruits and vegetables with skins, etc But the overstated case for fiber is an emotional one, without perspective Dietary fiber is not a panacea "

Next week I'll discuss what the other two nutrition experts told the food writers

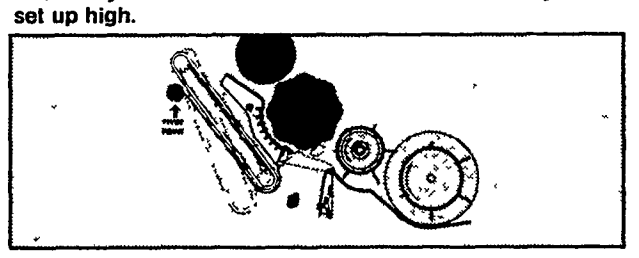
give you extra-bushel capacity.

One of the reasons for the extra harvesting capacity and efficiency of GLEANER Combines is the down-front cylinder. An exclusive design that cuts the distance your crop has to travel...only 15½ inches from the back of the header to the cylinder. And this reduces bunching, choking and uneven cylinder wear. All other combines have the cylinder set up high.



Other exclusive features center-line design for balanced weight distribution, low center of gravity, all-around visibility, two and three-stage separation puts more grain in the bin, safety concave door automatically ejects rocks and other potentially damaging objects that enter the cylinder and concave area

All this is just a part of what makes GLEANER Combines so great Ask your Allis-Chalmers dealer for the rest and Kathryn) along with their children, Jay - 17; Stephen - 16; Kay - 13 and Scott - 11; have contributed much time and effort into making their older farm home relive its historical foundations.

A hollowed out tree trunk, once used as a waterline for an underground spring, was salvaged and used to make a pole lamp for the Kreider family room. A smaller piece of wood was used for a hanging lamp also.

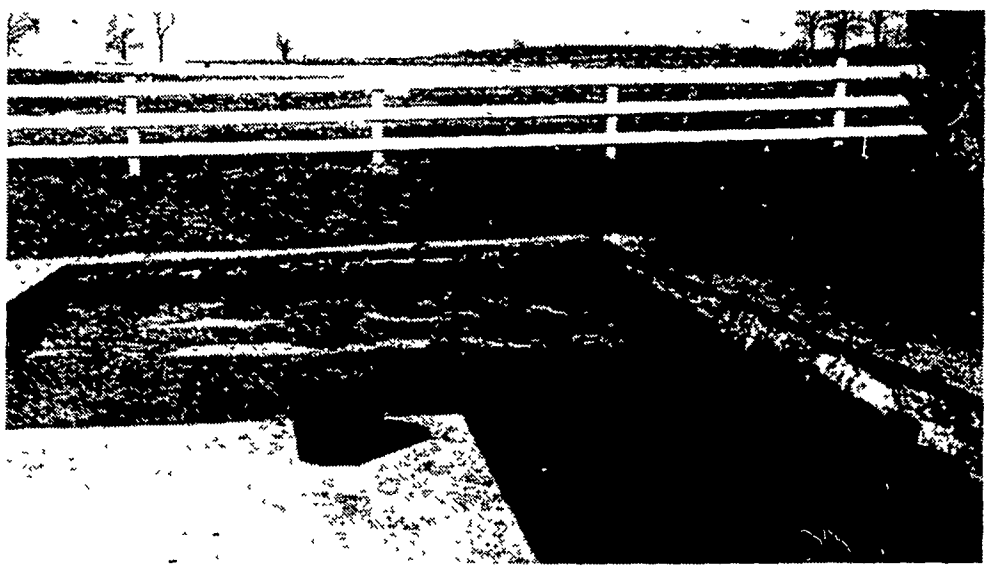
The family operates a dairy farm and are active in many community and farm affairs.

Kreiders Own Farm Seven Generations

Across the county - off Willow Road - is the Kreider Homestead currently owned by John Kreider, the seventh generation to have lived on "Trout Spring Farm."

The graceful stone house was built in the early 1700's although no specific date has been recorded. Almost 150 years later an addition was added to the original structure and from that time on it has been remodeled to suit the tenants.

The home was quite similar to many found in the Lancaster County area of the same time period with Christian doors and German-style locks and hinges. Heavy oak beams also constituted the ceiling structures and have proven to be a "decorater's dream" in the newly renovated living room.



The Kreiders "Trout Spring Farm" is surrounded by stone walkways and picnic areas on the patio.

One of the first rooms that the John Kreiders tackled in remodeling was the older living area. At first it was decided that a new kitchen would be located in the spacious square room but further discussions prompted the Kreiders to use for a family room instead. A large stone fireplace was exposed and heavy round beams gave the room a rustic appearance.

Although the wainscoting, which lined the room, was originally destined for removal, Mrs. Kreider decided to keep the antique look and utilize the woodworking to enhance the colonial atmosphere of the family room. It took one whole summer of scraping, sanding and painting to revitalize the wainscoting but the green shades of the woodwork has been blended with wall paper to make the room a comfortable and cozy center.

One of the most unique features of decor in the Kreider's family room is the lamp post made from hand-hewn trunks which constituted an old waterline around the farm pond. Almost 300 years old, the trunks were salvaged and made into lamp posts and fixtures, keeping a farming tradition alive for inspection.

The Kreiders are also antique collectors and are hoping to complete a period dining room in the future. A smokehouse is also included in the attic and has been kept in its original state.

Trout Spring Farm was so named for its pond and waterways which have been stocked with the fish. An overflow spring leading to the pond has been worked into a patio-garden setting in the Kreider's backyard. Using flagstone to create a picnic area surrounded by the open water channels, the trout can be viewed by the many visitors to the farm.

Also located in the backyard is an old brick

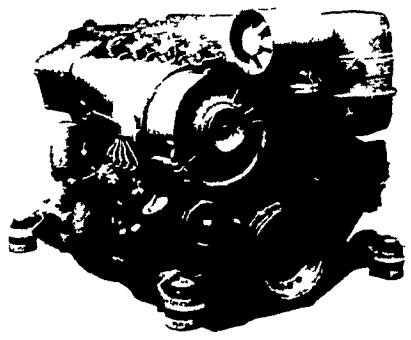
COST



CUTTER

The cost of diesel fuel has jumped nearly 70 percent since October, 1973 and it's still about three cents a gallon cheaper than gasoline. Higher fuel costs call for a closer look at total operating costs when you buy engines. Deutz air-cooled engines use 20 to 40 percent less fuel than most water-cooled diesel engines - far less than gasoline engines. And they are competitively priced. So hadn't you better buy or specify the cost cutter - Deutz? 10 to 500 bhp.

bake oven which was used in the summer for all the Kreider's home baked goods. Denoted as a "squirrel tail" bake oven, the structure has been enclosed with a wood frame and is used for hot dog roasts in the summer.

When an office was planned for John Kreider, a farm equipment dealer, the family enclosed a porch area near the front of the house. Although an inner wall was planned for construction, the stone wall which was included in the first structure was utilized instead. With the stone inner wall and a careful selection of antiqued woodwork, the office took on a rugged look quite suitable for an office surrounding. Mrs. Kreider has added her touches to the room by complementing the furniture arrangement with a rocking chair, antique butter churn and hanging baskets filled with plants.

The Kreiders have six children: Connie - 20; Barry - 17; John - 12; Philip - 10; Jennifer - 8 and Kirby - 3. The Kreiders are active members of the Mellinger's Mennonite Church and at the Lancaster Mennonite School where their children attend classes.

Along with the dairy equipment business, the Kreiders milk 42 Holsteins and farm their own land and some rented acreage. Members of the PFA, Kreider is also a director of the Le-Hi Valley Co-op and the Witmer Fire Company.

Other homes to be featured on the Heritage Trail Tour include the Roy and Verna Rohrer farm near Strasburg; the Harold and Helen Rohrer homestead near Lancaster, and the Norman and Lois Kolb farm on Pitney Road.

The tour will be held on April 21 from 9-12:30 with the ladies' luncheon to follow at Historic Strasburg at 1:00 p.m. The luncheon will be followed by the county talent competition.

Tickets for the tour can be obtained by calling the following individuals: Mrs. J. Richard Garber - 367-2148; Mrs. Richard Hess 687-6547; Mrs. Robert Brubaker 665-3032; Mrs. William Dean 687-6447; Mrs. Harold Fry 426-1425; Mrs. Harold Rohrer 464-2398 and Mrs. Robert Rohrer 215-932-8920.

Mrs. Kreider's decorative touch was added to her husband's office space by using a butter churn, hanging baskets and a rocking chair. The stone wall (at left) was the original outside wall of the house.

Farm women told to 'fight for freedom'

Roger Fleming, former Secretary-Treasurer of American Farm Bureau Federation and new head of Farm Family Insurance Co., told local farm women that they must "fight for freedoms everywhere."

Addressing the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association Women's Rally at Lamar, the farm official asserted, "You women are our not-so-secret weapon in the campaign to bring the importance of economic questions and issues to the forefront in this Bicentennial year."

He warned his audience not to be misled by those "30 second TV spots" that lead Americans to believe the only important things about their heritage are the military victories or the political oratory.

He termed the basic tense of the United States style of living to be the capitalism which embraces these four requirements: (1) Private ownership of property in most cases, (2) Private management of property in most instances, (3) the opportunity for profit with the necessary risk of losing within the system, and (4) competitive conditions that offer both the opportunity and risk.

He boiled down his description of inflation to the picture of a kettle boiling over. When a cook sees that situation, he or she doesn't just put the lid on, he turns down the heat.

"Even the smallest kids running their lemonade stands on a hot blistery day, when business is heavy, have learned the secret to inflation," he noted. "They simply fill an extra pitcher with water and dump it into the lemonade and keep on selling. Well, you know who has the bucket deluting the lemonade. They're all in Washington D.C.!"

Fleming sees the farmer and non-farm consumers with a common stake in the economic problems of this decade ever since the war on poverty and the Vietnam war kicked them off. "We've got to get rid of the interveners who see only the hole in the donut," he asserted.

"No economic system in the world has ever produced as much food to feed the world and raise the standard of living like the American system. But now the real threat to this system is on the horizon. There are those who feel agriculture must become a public utility. Already there are the threats of intervention in chemical regulations, land control guised as land use programs and embargoes on grain that deny farmers free markets."

County women Ethel and Phyllis Gross, Mary Marsteller and Gail McPherson wholeheartedly supported Fleming's conclusion which led to a standing ovation: "The American people, in this Bicentennial year, must rededicate themselves to the preservation of their economic freedoms," he began.

"To accomplish this goal we must first strengthen our churches and affirm our faith in God; then we must strengthen our respect for the worth and integrity of the individual. We must minimize patronage that simply cuts down the worth of persons; and we must decentralize government which threatens state, local and individual rights."

"Finally, we must come to recognize economic and political freedoms as Siamese twins. There is no future in pessimism. Like the prophet Nehemiah, we must repair the wall in front of us."

Fleming closed on a humorous description of the liberation of farm women over the two ensuring centuries: "When the cows get out, because the fence gets down, you women are liberated!"

Fleming's speech concluded a day-long workshop session for the farm women at which they had learned about the project for informing farmers about new OSHA requirements, the member services of their association and the policy development, information network and legislative work of PFA.

Five 4-H'ers to attend conference

Five outstanding Pennsylvania 4-H'ers have been selected to take part in the National 4-H Conference in Washington, D.C. April 24 to 29.

The conference, with headquarters at the National 4-H Center, is designed to explore ways to improve 4-H work and to interpret the youth program to legislators and other public officials through personal contact.

The 4-H members attending the national conference are Wayne Bender of Sonestown; Jeffrey Roth of Spring Grove; Wendy Graves of Bloomsburg; Terry Coon of Clinton, and Pat Reinhart of Gettysburg.

Major thrusts of this conference will be based on the Bicentennial theme, "4-H '76 — Spirit of Tomorrow." The delegates will have an opportunity to concentrate their participation on 4-H program history, heritage, and plans for Century III, future directions of 4-H and on our nation's heritage; and horizons for the future including emphasis on international programs.

Several hundred 4-H members from all states, Puerto Rico, and the District of Columbia will take part in the activities.

Deals With Relatives Tricky

When renting real estate or lending money to relatives, extra care must be taken to protect your legitimate tax benefits. If you charge less than the going rentals, for example, or make no interest charges, or fail to put repayment schedules in writing, Internal Revenue Service could rule that it's not really a business deal and therefore doesn't merit the usual tax treatment.

Cherry board expanded

Appointment of four members and their alternates to the Cherry Administrative Board was announced recently by the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA). The board operates under a federal marketing order for red tart cherries grown in Michigan, New York, Wisconsin, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia, and Maryland.

George Dever, fruit and vegetable official with USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service, said a major function of the board is to analyze supply and demand conditions and recommend to USDA the total quantity of cherries that may be shipped under the marketing order during specified time periods. This helps stablize supplies and prevents market shortages and gluts.

The board consists of 12 members - six producers and six handlers - with an alternate for each. The marketing order, Dever explained, specifies a three-year term of office, with terms of one-third the members expiring each year.

The McWilliamses look back on 160 years of farm experiences

Owners of a farm which has been in the same family since 1845, Paul and Nellie McWilliams have a combined total of 160 years of farm life experiences to look back on. Their verdict is that there was no such thing as "the good old days" in farming. Both are still active and lively, and this year, as in past years, McWilliams will be bringing thousands of hay bales in by himself. He'll be 82 in July; she turns 80 later this month.

By DIETER KRIEG

GRAYSVILLE — Paul and Nellie McWilliams have a combined total of over 150 years of farm experiences to look back on. Both were born in the 19th Century and they live on a farm which was deeded to the McWilliams family in 1845. Their history in Spruce Creek Valley dates back to 1790.

A remarkable sense of humor very much a part of both their personalities, the Huntingdon County couple humorously describe the days when hunting and fishing were the only easy things about life on the farm. McWilliams will be 82 in July, his wife turns 80 later this month. They've been married for 57 years and are still fighting over who has the better baseball team — Pittsburgh or Philadelphia.

Active in farming ever since he was 10 years old, McWilliams says there was no such thing as "the good old days" in farming. But his wife says with a laugh: "If he ever quit, he'd be the most contrary man to live with you'd ever want to see. He's out every morning clearing fence rows and cleaning things up . . . he can't sit still for five minutes."

Indeed, the witty and wiry McWilliams doesn't hesitate to tackle a field of hay all by himself. Working with an old baler and tractor which have seen several decades of use, he has been making hay on his 305-acre farm year after year. He hopes to be back out again this year, although he admits he's slowing down just a bit, and a double hernia bothers him. He loads, unloads, and stacks the crop by himself on many occasions and even takes it to central Pennsylvania auctions on an old pickup truck throughout the Winter and Spring months.

While trying to give the impression that things were too hard in farming during the first half of this century, McWilliams hasn't made things as easy for himself as he could.

Holstein convention slated for summer

Identification of non-registered Holstein females by the Holstein-Friesian Association of America will be a major topic at the organization's annual convention, June 28-July 2, 1976.

At a recent meeting, the organization's board of directors re-affirmed its support for a program to identify the parentage of non-registered Holsteins.

The board proposed that Holstein - Friesian Association of America began to identify non-registered Holstein females on July 1, 1976, if the idea receives support from the delegates at the June annual meeting.

Identification will help dairymen keep better herd records and evaluate the performance of their Holsteins more accurately. Sire identification of females offers buyers a type of "quality control" and allows sellers to earn more money from their cows with superior genetics.

The identification process will also make additional performance information available for the calculating of sire performance proofs. A large number of identified daughters are needed to reliably evaluate the performance of sires and to accurately predict the performance of the sires' future daughters.

LeHi names directors

John E. Kreider of Lancaster, was ratified as a member of the board of directors of Lehigh Valley Cooperative Farmers at the annual meeting recently. Kreider, who resides at 523 Willow Road, farms 130 acres of land with 100 head of cattle. He is past superintendant of the Mellinger Mennonite Church and a board member of the Locust Grove Mennonite School.

Other business at the meeting was the election by the general membership of Harold Fabian of Bethlehem as director-at-large of the Cooperative. Other directors ratified were Barry P. Shirey of Middleburg, Norman W. Sollenberger of Fayetteville and Joseph E. Corle of Martinsburg.

Easter designs made fun by quilling

By SALLY BAIR
Feature Writer

The cross, spring flowers and decorated eggs all bring to mind the Easter season. Mrs. William Irwin, 3139 Parker Drive, Lancaster has added a new dimension to these traditional symbols of Easter through the old art of quilling.

Decorating eggs is nothing new - with a little talent and a lot of patience there are many ways to make an ordinary hen's egg a work of art. But Mrs. Irwin pasted her intricate scrolls of quilling onto eggs to create an appealing, unique addition to any table centerpiece.

She has also created a quilled necklace in the shape of a cross, which she wears year round, but which takes on special significance at this season. She said you can make earrings and pins too, and she makes more elaborate jewelry by adding pearls or other stones to the quilling. Most of the pieces she has given away.

Mrs. Irwin holds a framed picture which she quilled. In the foreground are more of her creations.

With the Easter season come spring flowers, and they are a natural subject for quilling, both alone and in combination. A favorite of Mrs. Irwin's is a basket of flowers surrounded by quilling, all framed. The combinations are limited only to one's imagination, once the basic skill is learned.

Mrs. Irwin said she has been quilling for about two years. She said, "Any craft that comes along usually interests me." She added that she taught herself to quill by reading books and "looking at it." There was a display at Marion Court which caught her eye and gave her ideas.

She said she really began quilling by doing wedding invitations. "I put them in a frame and it makes a nice wedding gift."

She has not only taught herself to quill, but last summer she helped teach quilling to members of the Landisville Klassy Klippers 4-H club. They also learned scherenschnitte and pin pricking.

Mrs. Irwin explained that quilling originally flourished in Europe during the 17th and 18th centuries, and said that nuns created the "paper filigree" to use up scraps of paper which was very valuable then. The nuns used feather quills, and examples have been found as early as the 16th century.

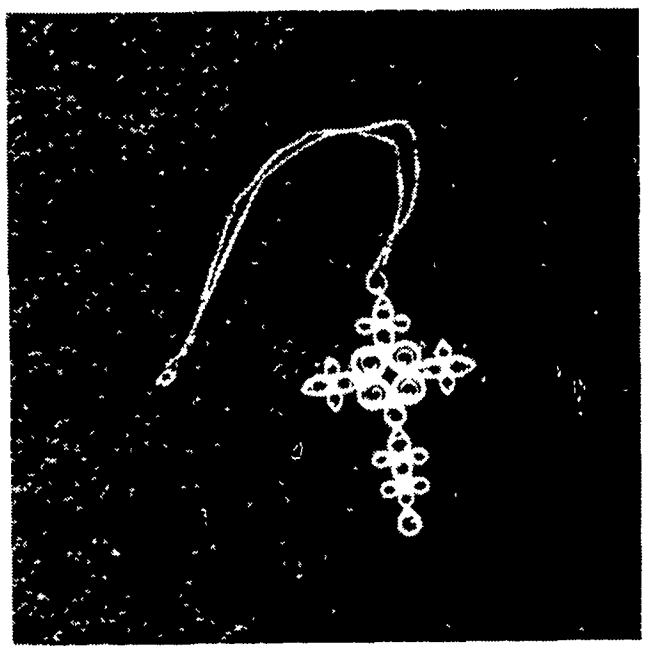
In this country early examples have been found, but none after the 1800's. Now, of course, it is becoming quite popular. Mrs. Irwin said it became popular about the time people went "back to doing hand things."

She explained that you can color your own paper and cut your own paper, but all kinds of pre-cut paper are readily available. She said she has used both regular quilling paper and parchment.

The mother of three sons, Mrs. Irwin said she is interested in many crafts often having taught herself. She has done ceramics, scissor cutting, pin pricking, crocheting and knitting. She does a lot of sewing and is now learning the fine art of fraktur. She also has given some thought to learning macrame.

She is a member of the Hempfield Women's Club and the Rose Circle of the Church of the Apostle, St. Paul's United Church of Christ, Lancaster.

Perhaps your Easter decorations can take on a new look this year by using quilling.



A quilled necklace shaped like a cross is a favorite piece of jewelry of Mrs. Irwin.

Prayers supported

At an open house at his campaign headquarters Republican Congressional candidate Donald F. Krank announced his support for the return of voluntary prayer in public schools. "One of the candidates has suggested that the question of voluntary prayer in public schools is not at issue, because Pennsylvania law allows meditation periods. I do not agree.

A first amendment which permits all types of pornography but denies at the same time the right to use the word 'God' does not make sense."

Swine flu shots to be available for next fall

UNIVERSITY PARK - Your regular annual flu shot won't protect you against the new deadly strain of swine influenza that could become epidemic next fall, warns Dr. John J. Docherty, assistant professor of microbiology at The Pennsylvania State University.

Dr. Docherty explains that flu vaccines are very specific. "They stimulate your immune system to produce antibodies that can attack only one kind of virus."

If you've been vaccinated against the A-Victoria flu virus that hit early this year, you'll still need a dose of the swine virus vaccine to be protected against the potential epidemic this fall.

However, Docherty cautions that anyone allergic to eggs will probably be allergic to the swine vaccine which is produced by growing the virus in fertile eggs.

Some of the egg protein unavoidably gets into the vaccine and can cause a reaction in susceptible individuals.

Those with an allergy need not go unprotected, however, Docherty adds. An alternative to the vaccine, called amatadine (trade name Symmetrel) exists. "It is not as effective as the vaccine," he says, "but may prevent the disease if administered properly."

Docherty says that despite its name, the swine flu began as a human virus in France during World War I. Returning doughboys brought the virus back with them to their farms in the U.S. where it was transferred to pigs. The virus was eventually identified in the animals and was dubbed the "swine" virus. Today, at least half the pigs in the U.S. are immune to the disease, according to one report.

As far as the new swine flu strain is concerned, Docherty, says, "you need not fear pork products - if you get the flu, you'll probably get it from another human being. However, in rural areas it may be possible to contract the disease from infected live pigs."

So far, only one outbreak of swine flu, in Ft. Dix, N.J., has been reported. One person died in that outbreak.

Unfortunately, no one can predict whether the outbreak will begin, spread and reach epidemic proportions, although most previous flu outbreaks have followed that pattern and this is the basis for concern of the medical community in this country, Docherty said.

During the last epidemic of swine flu in 1918-19, an estimated 20 million persons died around the world, including 548,000 Americans.

Docherty points out that many of the antibiotics and other drugs available today to treat flu complications, such as pneumonia, were not available during the 1918-19 epidemic. Thanks to modern medicine, those complications don't pose as great a danger today, he says.

Nevertheless, he urges the public to "be cautious" and notes that probably every American under the age of 50 is susceptible to the virus and even those over that age who might have been exposed to the swine influenza cannot be sure that they are fully protected.

Food standard booklet published

Every food shopper knows that U.S. Department of Agriculture Grade AA eggs are of slightly higher quality than Grade A eggs, and that a U.S. Grade A can of tomatoes tops a U.S. Grade B can.

But what most shoppers don't know is how USDA sets its grade standards for a wide variety of foods, which embrace meat, poultry, eggs, butter, cheddar cheese, instant non-fat dry milk, fresh and processed fruits and vegetables, plus rice, dry beans and peas.

Food graders of USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service make their decisions on such factors as color, firmness, texture, flavor, moisture content and many other characteristics, depending on the foods graded. Shoppers who would like to know what food graders look for and how they arrive at the different grades can learn from a booklet entitled "USDA Grade Standards for Food - How They are Developed and Used." For a single free copy write to: Information Division, AMS, U.S. Department of Agriculture, 26 Federal Plaza (Room 1653), New York, NY 10007.

Low-income taxpayers, even those who do not have to file tax returns, should file this year if they are eligible for an "earned income credit" - a rebate of up to $400. Can't get it without filing.

Ecological extremism ebbing

By DIETER KRIEG

SMOKETOWN — Extremism for ecological concern has reached its peak and the trend is towards moderation, according to Walter N. Peechatka, guest speaker at last month's annual banquet for the Lancaster County Conservation District. He is director of the State Soil Conservation Commission.

Peechatka noted that "locking up of our environment is not the answer" to conserving our resources; but "wise use and conservation are." Expressing concern over past, present and future environmental legislation, the conservationist said: "American agriculture is the first rung on the ladder of survival in this country."

He said that standards must be realistic enough to allow farmers to work without both hands tied behind their back. "Caution is needed . . . and we need a change in the definition of navigatable waters."

Up until 15 to 20 years ago there was little or no concern for the environment. "Our resources were exploited and the prevailing attitude was that there are more resources where these come from," the speaker noted. But in the 1960's, the public became very much aware and "ecology" became a household word. Various state and federal laws were passed. The Clean Streams Act is an example.

During those years there was citizen support for anything that had to do with environment and the unfortunate result was that extremist groups developed and blocked many programs. Resulting laws were often not in the best interest of the public as a whole.

"Now the pendulum is on the way back," Peechatka said.

"But I am concerned about this change," he added. "The key point is that we must insure that the pendulum doesn't go back to apathy again. Also, a pristine environment is no good if we don't have food, electricity, etc.

Peechatka described Lancaster County as one of the most outstanding in the country, noting that the district "can be proud of its programs, directors and staff."

The roll of women is increasing in agriculture. "They're one of the most untapped resources," Peechatka said, adding that there are many potential uses of ladies in conservation programs. "We all have a responsibility of protecting our environment ... it's later than ever before ... and the answer is in compromise," he concluded.

The meeting was highlighted by the presentation of five awards. Karl Dieter Linde, a dairyman from Oxford R1, was named as the Outstanding Conservation Cooperator and presented with a large color photograph of his farm. The picture was taken by Grant Heilman, noted photographer who was one of four others to be recognized for their achievements and contributions to Lancaster County conservation. Completing the list of award winners were Bob Malick of WGAL-TV, Sam Wenger of Manheim Central's science department, and Paul Paes, a former county commissioner.

Fourteen teams from Southeastern and Southcentral Pa. Young Farmer chapters competed for the championship trophy. The teams were divided into two divisions of seven teams each and a round-robin type tournament was held for each division. The winners of each division then played off for the championship. The winning Garden Spot team won seven games and lost one. Garden Spot beat Penn Manor for the division title and then went on to defeat the Twin Valley Young Farmers for the championship.

Members of the winning team were Jay Hershey, captain, Robert Book, Glenn Hershey, Nelson Martin, Skip Brackbill, John Landis, Norm Hershey, LaVerne Martin, J. Kenneth Hershey, and advisor Don Robinson.

Twin Valley team members were Titus Kurtz, Gary Stoltzfus, Frank Stoltzfus, Richard Kurtz, Jim Stoltzfus, Melvin Houck, Nelson Cling, Doug Yoder, Eugene Stoltzfus, and Wayne Lutz, advisor.

The Young Farmer chapters competing in the tournament were: Ephrata, Manheim, Garden Spot, Solanco, Penn Manor, Elizabethtown, Twin Valley, Blue Mountain, Eastern Lebanon County, Cedar Crest, Northern Lebanon County, Conrad Weiser, Lower Dauphin, and Annville-Cleona

The tournament is an annual event that has been attracting more teams each year. It started out with a few Lancaster County teams and has spread to most Young Farmer Chapters in southeastern and southcentral Pennsylvania.

Corn-soy: the ideal source of amino acids

Feed the Vigortone corn-soy way

For some time now, universities and top nutritionists have agreed that a corn-soy ration provides the ideal level and balance of amino acids for growing and finishing swine. In fact, one leading nutritionist recently concluded: "There is no single ingredient or group of ingredients that will economically substitute for soybean meal in swine rations."

Corn-soy rations, like all swine rations, must be fortified with the proper levels of major minerals, trace minerals, vitamins and other ingredients vital to the health and growth of the pig. This is where Vigortone pre-mixes come in.

Vigortone pre-mixes for proper nutrition

Seldom will any feed program outperform a Vigortone fortified corn-soy ration. The reasons are simple. In addition to providing the proper balance of all 10 essential amino acids, you also assure adequate levels of other nutrients — even when poor quality grain is fed.

Unlike commercial programs, the ration is not robbed of proper nutrition when you cut back on protein (amino acids), because your major minerals, trace minerals, vitamins and other ingredients are separate.

Visit with your Vigortone Serviceman

If you'd like to learn more about corn-soy rations and how to fortify them, talk to your Vigortone serviceman soon. You'll learn why more pork producers are feeding Vigortone — especially now.

One of the categories in poultry judging was placing four chickens from best to worst, as these students are doing here. Held at Penn Manor High School, the event drew more than 25 participants from County vo-ag departments.

Penn Manor's poultry judges win 1st place

By DIETER KRIEG

MILLERSVILLE — For the second year in a row, Penn Manor's poultry judging team captured first place in the Lancaster County FFA Poultry Judging Contest, held here on Tuesday. Penn Manor also served as host for the event.

Coached by Gus Birchler, Penn Manor's FFA poultry judges are all freshmen. Members of this year's winning team are Janie Peiffer, Mark Sweigart, and Steve McMichael. They will represent the school at the state contest in June, which is perennially held at Penn State. A rotating trophy was presented to the school by Walter Shaub, president of the Lancaster County Poultry Association.

Falling into the runner-up spot in the competition, which is only in its second year in Lancaster County, was the team from Solanco High School. Completing the slate of the top five teams were New Holland, Ephrata, and Manheim Central.

Penn Manor's McMichael was high individual in the match which saw several dozen students compete for ribbons and a rotating trophy. Second-high individual was Mark Weiler from Ephrata, followed by Steve Hershey from Manheim Central. New Holland FFA'ers took the next three places with Harry Boley, Ken Fox, and Greg Finney, respectively. Seventh and eighth place went to Solanco's Steve Vasco and Wayne Bitner, respectively. Completing the top ten were Sweigart from Penn Manor and Tony Eberly from Ephrata.

The contest included various categories which required contestants to identify 30 different poultry diseases and judge eggs on

ELCO clubs clean stream

The Eastern Lebanon County FFA chapter recently joined forces with the Heidelberg Sportsmens Club of Schaefferstown to clean up Hammer Creek. The two clubs picked up ribbish for about three miles of the creek and adjoining road in preparation for fishing season which starts April 17. Standing, left to right, are: Joe Arnold, George Krall, Bruce Houser and James Bucher. Sitting, left to right are: Wayne Ritcheie, Mark Bucks, Vince Arnold, Wilson Berger, Ken Arnold, Eugene Hoffman, and Perry Bucher. The truck was supplied by Evergreen Tractor Company, Lebanon, and rubbish disposed of by the Charles White Disposal Service of Schaefferstown. The activity was part of the FFA's community service program, in which they help other clubs and their community.

Fire protection funded by USDA

WASHINGTON - The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) announced recently funding of $3.5 million for the 1976 Rural Community Fire Protection program.

The program provides technical and financial assistance to rural communities to organize, train and equip local forces for fire prevention and suppression. State Foresters and officials of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, Guam, and the Virgin Islands administer the program through cooperative agreements with USDA's Forest Service.

In 1975, the first year the program operated, 5376 applications for assistance were received. The allotted funds were distributed among 2169 approved projects. Rural communities and states from across the Nation prodived $5.2 million of their own in over-matching the $3.5 million Federal program. The $8.7 million was used to organize 19 fire departments, acquire 240 fire trucks and other necessary equipment, and train over 18,000 people. The 1976 program will emphasize the organizing and training of rural firefighters.

Rural areas and towns of under 10,000 population which have inadequate fire protection and want to participate in the 1976 program should contact their State Foresters before June 1.

Communities selected to participate will receive up to 50 percent of actual costs of approved projects. In addition, loans for fire fighting facilities in rural communities are available from USDA's Farmers Home Administration. These loans may be used to complement the federal grants received under this program.

April showers may bring May flowers but they also bring grey chilly days. Fight the chills with a Polish Hot Pot. Pare 6 potatoes and cut in ½ inch slices. Arrange in the bottom of a greased 2 quart casserole. Cut ½ pound Polish sausage into 1 inch slices and place over potatoes. Top with 6 onions thickly sliced. Mix a 1 pound can of tomatoes, 1½ teaspoon paprika and 1 teaspoon salt and add to the casserole. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes. Stir in ½ cup sour cream and bake 15 minutes longer. Makes 6 servings.

Wheat growers set aside funds

WASHINGTON D.C. - The Executive Committee of the National Association of Wheat Growers has voted to set-aside $150,000 of legal and legislative fund collections for immediate court action in the event of any future restrictions on wheat exports, according to Don Woodward, president of the Association.

"This decision is a warning to those who would attempt to block new wheat sales," Woodward said, "and it serves notice that we are ready to take legal action to assure future access to world markets." The Executive Committee action builds on decisions made at the Association's January meeting in Billings, Montana, where growers voted to establish a fund to protect export markets through appropriate legal and legislative action and public relations efforts.

"The Association has postured itself to respond immediately to any future restrictions and protect the interests of growers," Woodward said. He said the Association is accelerating its funding effort and has taken this step to provide a defense against future market interferrence as it works to reach the overall goal of $1 million. The Association will also increase emphasis on the public information and legislative phases of their program.

Woodward reported to the group that the drive to raise $1 million to fight for open access to export markets was off to a successful start. He indicated that the fund-raising effort is well under way in every member state and the NAWG was taking it to the local level in a stepped-up nation-wide effort. "We are convinced," Woodward pointed out," that the funds can be raised and we are fully committed to giving farmers the opportunity to join our national effort to keep export markets open."

"Our commitment to maintain free access to export markets has gained favorable benefits for wheat farmers by tempering administrative decisions affecting exports," Woodward concluded.

Those wishing to support the wheat association's effort may send their checks to the NAWG L & L Fund, Suite 1030, 1030 15th Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20005.

Bicentennial feature

His hay making and handling methods are an example. Another is that he mows his farm-size lawn with a push mower.

A grin spreads across his face from ear to ear as he proclaims: "A lack of activity is what makes people get old."

The "not so good old days," as remembered by McWilliams, meant plowing with a one-bottom plow pulled by two horses; stacking loose hay in the field, pitching it on wagons and piling it loose in the barn; hauling 50 to 60 tons of ice in the wintertime to be used for cooling during warm months; picking corn by hand, and much more.

Asked what he liked best about farming, McWilliams' eyes lit up and the sheepish grin became more pronounced. "Fishing and hunting!" was his reply. He claimed he farmed because he didn't have much choice — opportunities for other careers weren't as available as they are now. Now, certainly old enough to retire, he and his wife both claim they don't know any better but to continue their lifestyle. Their love for the land is obvious, no matter how much they kid about it.

The young-at-heart couple lives in a 10-room brick home which was built in 1857 by McWilliams' grandfather, William B. The bricks for the house were made in kilns on the farm. Massive walls and thick wooden beams were used in the home's construction and are characteristic of the era.

In a way, McWilliams himself wonders how things were done in the horse and buggy age. He remembers the 65-foot well which was dug out by hand. Laughing a little, and shaking his head, he remembered the summers when the well went dry. Even more vivid in his memory were the winters when the stream froze and went dry underneath the ice. Cattle had to be driven to water which was several miles away. Today's farmers don't encounter those situations very often — if at all.

Something else taken for granted by people today is the hauling and marketing of milk. The owner of 75 head of registered Holsteins until 1965, McWilliams remembers the times when a farmer had to haul milk to the creamery himself with a horse and wagon. Advancement came when all the farmers had to do was place their milk cans on a milk stand at the end of the lane.

A farmer with animals to sell had to load them on a wagon or sled and go to Altoona. It was an all day affair. To get there on time a farmer in this part of northern Huntingdon County had to leave by three or four o'clock in the morning. He wouldn't get back until bedtime. An amusing recollection McWilliams had was the time when he hauled a heavy load of farm goods to Tyrone on a sled. "Covered bridges and sleds don't go together too well," he said with a chuckle.

A rather typical schedule for a farmer 50 years ago went something like this: Get up at five a.m. to milk 18 to 20 cows by hand, feed the animals, curry the horses, work in the field until milking time at five or six o'clock in the evening. Breakfast was at seven and lunch was at noon.

McWilliams never had a barn cleaner, silo unloader, pipeline milkers, automatic washers, an automated feeding system, factory air-conditioned tractor, five-bottom plow, or kick-baler.

As a young man McWilliams had to walk behind a one-bottom plow, and turning over two acres of ground was putting in a full day. A two-bottom riding plow was a big improvement, but still nothing when compared to the seven and eight bottom plows some farmers use today.

Wheat was cut by a binder, and put up in shocks in the fields. "Working around the threshing machine was one of the worst jobs there was," recalled McWilliams, almost shuddering as he remembered the dust and heat of "the good old days."

He disliked the idea of making their own bread and butter and butchering animals and was therefore quick to eliminate these chores once he started operating on his own. "Those were ornery jobs," he commented.

McWilliams purchased his first tractor in the early 1920's. It had an estimated 25 to 30 horsepower coming out of a four-cylinder engine. A second tractor came along a few years later and the five or six horses were not missed, the veteran farmer admitted.

Electricity wasn't available here until after World War II — and even then the prospective customer had to pay for everything himself. With the introduction of electricity to the McWilliams farm, chores became somewhat easier. The gasoline motor on the vacuum pump was replaced with an electric one and McWilliams says it wasn't until then that he was satisfied with his milking machines. Ice was no longer

Zero — PIONEER OF FARM BULK MILK COOLERS

Broiler carcasses were inspected as part of the second annual Lancaster County FFA poultry judging contest held this week at Penn Manor High School. The hosts won the contest for the second year in a row.

Walter Shaub, left, president of the Lancaster County Poultry Association, presents a trophy to Mark Sweigart and Janie Peiffer, members of the Penn Manor poultry judging team. The third member of the first-place team, which has won twice in as many years, was Steve McMichael, (not pictured). He was also the high individual in the contest.

both exterior and interior quality. Live chickens had to be evaluated to determine which were fit for keeping and which were to be culled. Also, a group of four had to be placed in order from best to least desirable on the basis of production potential and conformation.

Broiler carcasses were judged for quality and placed in ranking order from best to least desirable.

Eggs were judged by candling and graded either AA, A, B, or inedible. Their exterior quality was also taken into consideration, as students had to know whether to class them as A, B, C, dirties, leakers, or checks. Another phase of the egg judging contest had the young FFA'ers inspect raw eggs on a plate.

The contest is sponsored by Pennfield Feeds Corporation, which furnished the birds and eggs.

Corn contest for young farmers

The second annual corn contest sponsored by the Elizabethtown Young Farmers will be getting underway within the next few weeks. To enter the contest the farmer must be a member of the Elizabethtown group and an entry fee of $5.00 will be required.

The contest will be held on a one-acre section and must be approved by the advisor (James Green) by June 15. The contestant is limited to one entry and will be using only one commercially available variety or hybrid. Entries will be harvested under the supervision of the advisor.

At harvest the entries will be weighed on approved scales and moisture tests will be taken.

Each individual competing will be responsible for buying a PSU forage analysis kit for the silage contest.

For more information call James Green at the Elizabethtown High School.

Chicago analyst to conduct seminars for commodity speculators and hedgers

LANCASTER — Julio R. Scaramastro, livestock analyst, member of the Chicago Mercantile Exchange and a vice president of Hornblower & Weeks-Hemphill, Noyes Incorporated will be in Lancaster Tuesday, April 13 to conduct seminars for commodity speculators and hedgers. Both seminars will be held at the Hotel Brunswick, formerly Hilton Inn, 189 North Queen Street, and the public is invited.

At the afternoon seminar to be held at 2:30 p.m., Scaramastro will discuss the speculative side of commodity trading. His talk, entitled "Livestock Markets — Where to From Here?" will cover how the commodity markets function, how to speculate in the livestock market and the outlook for 1976.

The evening seminar will begin at 7:30 p.m. Scaramastro will discuss "Hedging as a Sane Approach to Marketing", describing the mechanics of hedging and the role of hedging in overall livestock marketing.

Scaramastro is one of the leading livestock analysts in the country. He has been in the commodity business for many years including 26 years with Swift & Co. before joining Hornblower.

Hornblower has 41 commodity trading centers in the United States and abroad, including one at 189 North Queen Street in Lancaster.

If you ventilate, and operate 54 fans . . . Our new fan can save you $5,000.00 a year . . .

INCREASED EFFICIENCY GIVES YOU MORE AIR PER WATT
Vent-O-Matic Watt Watcher fans operate at higher efficiency levels than competitive models. You therefore get Vent-O-Matic's rated air delivery (CFM) with less energy input, with lower electrical costs for you.

Take one 36" Vent-O-Matic Watt Watcher ventilating fan. Run it 7000 hours per year (80% duty cycle) at .05" static pressure and 3¢ per kilowatt hour. You will save nearly $5.00 per month. Multiply that by 54 fans and project it at 8% interest compounded monthly for 10 years and it comes to over $50,000. OR $5,000. per year. Vent-O-Matic's cost a little more, but you'll pay back the initial price premium in not much over a year.

And because electricity costs are projected to increase 12 to 15% each year for the next five years, your savings will be even greater and your payback shorter.

Federal estate tax alteration supported

ANNAPOLIS — Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Young D. Hance is urging farm owners throughout the state to write their Congressmen to support legislation that would modify the Federal Estate Tax to have the effect of preserving Maryland farmland for posterity.

Testifying before the House Ways and Means Committee, Secretary Hance said that the present Federal Estate or Death Tax, which ranges from three to 77 percent of the value of an estate, after a $60,000 deduction, has a regressive effect on the future of farming and has actually destroyed farms here as well as throughout the United States.

Congress is currently considering measures that would allow a higher deduction and provide that farmland be appraised for federal tax purposes at its agricultural value. H.B. 1793 would increase the allowable deduction from $60,000 to $200,000. H.B. 3831, sponsored by Representative Goodloe Byron (D. Md.) would value farmland at its agricultural worth.

Hance told the Congressional panel that under prevailing law a person inheriting a farm estate and who intends to continue it in farming might find it financially impossible because of the Federal Estate Tax bite. This tax is calculated on the land's fair market value, which is usually considerably higher than the agricultural value. Because of this, the heirs frequently have to sell substantial portions of the land to meet the tax obligation. And, in many instances, this makes it economically unfeasible to farm the remaining acres. He cited several examples that have occurred in Maryland.

Hance stressed that urban sprawl, resulting from the growth of the Washington-Boston megalopolis, together with inflation has elevated land values here. Consequently, many farm owners, who wish to bequeath their farm estate to their sons and daughters, so that they may continue the operation, find that the Death Tax will be so high as to make this impossible for the heirs. For instance, a 300-acre farm with a modest agricultural value may well generate a tax bill of $200,000. This is particularly so of land near Washington and Baltimore.

The state agriculture official also pointed out that farm wives are treated unfairly under the present federal law. He said that they are an integral part of the farm labor force, performing essential chores on a daily basis. Yet, they cannot claim a deduction for any financial contribution made to the value of the estate unless they can present payroll receipts.

He went on to say that it would be socially desirable, economically feasible, and environmentally sound to allow a much higher deduction than the present $60,000.

Self-Employed Or Employee?

Many workers who formerly operated as independent contractors are being relabeled employees by the IRS and their paychecks made subject to tax withholding. To qualify as self-employed, a salesman must be: free to sell the products of more than one company; paid by commission only, with no guarantee; able to set his own territory and work schedule; and not compensated for his expenses.

needed to keep the milk cool because electrically powered compressors were soon installed.

A carbide plant had been used for lighting the house and barn before electricity came to the farm by wire. Using approximately 100 pounds of carbide every 56 weeks, McWilliams used the spent material later on to whitewash his fences.

Farming methods differed greatly from what we see today. Mechanization has brought about many changes. McWilliams believes this was the greatest thing that's happened to agriculture. The use of land was another way in which farming differed generations ago. It was not unusual, for example, for a farmer to make only one cutting of hay per year. Improved varieties of seeds, and the demand for greater production and efficiency have been responsible for a number of changes on the farm.

Mrs. McWilliams, just two years younger than her husband, has a lot of recollections of her own, but she did somehow manage to pass up the task of churning butter — a chore her spouse disliked so much. She says she doesn't miss the old wood stove of "the good old days" and prefers riding in a car rather than on horseback. She still does all the cooking and cleaning and laundering and finds time for crocheting, making afghans, and music.

Hired help was better during the first half of the century, claimed McWilliams, because other job opportunities were not as readily available. Men worked or did without. Welfare programs were not as expanded as they are today.

Farm life was most enjoyable to McWilliams during the years 1935 to 1940. Two reasons for this feeling are that his sons, Paul Jr., and George were on the farm to help and he himself was in the prime of his life. Financially, the last couple of years have been best, because hay has been selling high. He markets several thousand bales per year.

Getting some time off has always been a disadvantage of living on a farm, but it was even worse when McWilliams was a young man. Even when time was available for leisure activities, one could not do as he wanted. For example, reading the newspaper, driving, and making home-made ice cream were forbidden on Sundays. Travel was restricted by not only time, but also by the means of transportation. The automobile opened the world to farmers somewhat, but it wasn't until good roads were built that he could travel a good distance from home. He recalled that it wasn't until 1950 that Route 45, which goes past his farm, was paved. The farthest he has been away from home are Atlantic City and Pittsburgh.

But in spite of all this — the hard work, restrictions, and lack of means — there was always extra energy available when it came time to play ball. Children and young men often got together for a game of baseball and if there is anything McWilliams misses today, it is the neighborliness of those days gone by. "People don't get together anymore," he said, "everybody just goes away and does what he wants to."

A great sports fan, especially baseball and football, McWilliams thinks that television is one of the greatest inventions of his lifetime — or maybe even all time. His wife jokingly complained that he will watch three or four football games in one day. His enthusiasm for football goes beyond the living room, however. He has been attending Penn State football games regularly since 1916 — the year he purchased his first automobile, a brand-new four-cylinder Studebaker. He holds season tickets for home games and claims it can't get too cold for him in Beaver Stadium.

An unusual event McWilliams remembers most vividly occurred about 11 o'clock one night. It was dark and a mysterious object glided along the Tussey Ridge, which borders his farm. It hummed gently and was all aglow. The incident puzzled him considerable and it wasn't until the next morning that he found out what it was. A newspaper revealed the area had been visited by the famous German air ship "Graf Zeppelin."

A charter member of the Baileyville Grange, McWilliams shows a keen interest in the world around him. He enjoys going to the Belleville auction and frequently spends an entire day there. Local, state, national and international news are of even greater interest to him today than what fishing and hunting are. "We didn't have much to worry about 30 or 50 years ago," he explained, "today there is so much going on, and so many temptations."

One thing the elderly farmer cherishes about his career is that he is his own boss. He believes he likes that part best. But if he had to advise a young man on what to do, he would not encourage him to choose farming.

"It costs too much money today," he explained.

Lehigh Co. agent 'roasted' at banquet

JACKSONVILLE — Live worms, a rabbit and a white rat are hardly what one would expect to encounter at an annual banquet, but such was the case when the Lehigh County Potato Growers gathered in Jacksonville on April 1. No April fool's joke, the creatures were presented as part of the surprise roast planned by the Association for S. Glenn Ellenberger who is celebrating his 25th year as Lehigh County Agent.

The roast honoring "Mr. Potato Head" got underway with a slide presentation by Carl D. Snyder of New Tripoli, master of ceremonies for the event. The slides began with a baby photo of Ellenberger and went on to show "highlights" of his career with appropriate comments added by Snyder. Ellenberger and his wife, Lelia, seemed to be thoroughly enjoying the occasion as it continued with a hilarious assortment of gifts and anecdotes offered by family and friends. Included in the program were his three sons, one of whom had flown in from Michigan to attend the event.

Gerald Hunsicker, president of the Lehigh Valley Potato Growers, wound up the evening with the "Tuber's Talk" and presented the County Agent, on behalf of the Association, a large plaque with the number "twenty-five" formed with potatoes, each topped with a shiny silver dollar.

Prevention of equine influenza important

For years, horsemen and veterinarians have been aware that influenza virus commonly produces respiratory infection in horses. In the spring of 1963, however, the seriousness of this disease in the U.S. took a dramatic turn for the worse. A new strain of influenza virus appeared at Miami race tracks just prior to the racing season. With remarkable speed, horses being trained in Florida carried the new flu virus to New York, Kentucky and other areas of racing competition.

The effect on the track industry was considerable. In Chicago and Toronto, for example, half the 1963 racing reasons were cancelled. Horses affected by influenza developed fever, loss of appetite and stiffness, as well as repiratory problems, and simply could not train or compete.

Fortunately, the epidemic spurred the development of preventive vaccines for equine influenza. Today, several manufacturers produce vaccines that can prevent infection caused by both forms of influenza virus. Prevention is definitely the key to controlling the disease because treatment after the fact has little effect on any virus.

In severe cases of equine influenza, convalescence and a persistent cough may last as long as six months. To recover fully, the horse must not have any strenuous activity during the recovery period. This, of course, prevents an affected animal from being used for work, pleasure, or show and racing competition.

Horse owners should also be aware that influenza and equine rhinopneumonitis infections have similar symptoms. Laboratory tests are necessary to distinguish between these two respiratory diseases. In both diseases, signs include a rapidly rising fever up to 107 degrees F usually lasting several days, along with coughing, depression and loss of appetite. Horses with rhinopneumonitis usually have mucous discharge from the nose and eyes which is more pronounced than in cases of influenza. If you vaccinate only for influenza, your horse could still develop rhinopneumonitis and show symptoms that could be mistaken for flu.

Fortunately, vaccines are available for both influenza and rhinopneumonitis so that horse owners can protect their animals from these two troublesome respiratory diseases. Like many infectious agents, respiratory viruses are easily transmitted wherever horses are in contact with each other. I strongly advise preventive vaccination for both influenza and rhinopneumonitis, particularly if you plan to enter your horses in competition.

If spring fever is keeping you out in the yard and away from the stove, then try Hurry-Up Hash; it takes just 15 minutes. In 2 tablespoons of fat, cook 1 medium onion sliced. Add ¾ pound diced bologna, 2 tablespoons vinegar, 1 teaspoon prepared horseradish, ½ teaspoon sugar and ½ teaspoon caraway seeds. Cook 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add 1½ cups canned potatoes, diced and 1 cup finely shredded cabbage. Heat thoroughly and season with salt and pepper to taste. Makes 3 to 4 servings.

Pesticide law delayed

HARRISBURG - Pennsylvania Agriculture Secretary Raymond J. Kerstetter recently announced a delay of one year for the effective date of the state's pesticide law which will require all users of restricted pesticides to be certified.

Originally, the effective date was Oct. 21, 1976. However, a list of restricted pesticides which is to be prepared by the federal Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) will not be ready by then. Therefore, the date was changed by Congress to Oct. 21, 1977.

"Without the list of restircted pesticides," said Kerstetter, "we cannot tell a farmer or commercial applicator he must be certified since that depends on the kinds of pesticides he uses."

The Agriculture Department's regional offices have been giving examinations to qualify people as commercial applicators of restricted pesticides during the past few months. Henry Nixon, director of the department's Bureau of Plant Industry, said the department will notify people of their test results.

Nixon emphasized that examinations taken this year to be certified users of restricted pesticides will be valid for the extended 1977 effective date of the pesticide law.

"The educational program associated with preparation for certification is an excellent one," said Nixon. He advised farmers and commercial applicators to secure study materials from the Penn State Correspondence Course office, Room 307, Agricultural Administration Building, University Park, PA 16802. "There is no need to wait until 1977," said Nixon. "Do it now and get it out of the way."

Nixon explained that farmers can study at their own leisure and take the exam at home. The exams should then be sent to Penn State for grading.

Commercial applicators can study the material for the specific category in which they want to be certified and then take the examination at a regional location.

Act 24, the Pennsylvania Pesticide Control Act, was signed into law by Gov. Milton Shapp in March, 1974. The state law complies with the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, Rodenticide Act (FIFRA) which requires anyone in the United States who uses a restricted pesticide to be certified.

Poultry production up 16 pct.

HARRISBURG - Poultry production in the commonwealth continued to increase during the week ending March 27. Placements of broiler chicks were 1,473,000, according to the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service.

This represents a 16 percent increase over the corresponding week in 1975 and five percent above the previous week. Average placements during the past 10 weeks were 11 percent above a year earlier.

In the 21 key poultry states, placements were 67,142,000. This is 12 percent above the same week last year, and about the same as a week earlier.

Linen fabric gaining popularity once again

Linen, sometimes called a "gift of nature," is a remarkably strong, durable, absorbent, lustrous fabric. It's lint free, smooth, and doesn't soil readily. Another feature is its ability to drape well with full crispness.

Linen clothing is comfortable, even in hottest weather. Some linen has been treated to resist wrinkles and others are naturally crease-resistant due to the characteristic of the weave.

The luster of linen enhances any table setting, formal or informal. And, linen towels quickly polish dishes and glassware dry.

Today, linen is as popular as ever, woven of yarn spun from flax fibers. A series of processes removes the smooth inner fibers which are then spun into different weights of yarn — for the sheerest of handkerchiefs to heavy, textured drapery and upholstery.

Linen also comes in a wide variety of weaves — twill, plain, dobby (a type of loom on which small, geometric figures can be woven), huck or huckaback (heavy, durable, absorbent material having a honeycomb effect), and satin and jacquard weaves for elegant damasks.

Another important characteristic of linen is that it launders easily. In fact, the sheen increases with washing. Linen, available in colors other than the familiar natural ecru and white, may be marked "Vat Dyed" or "Fast Color." These offer assurance of fade-resistant fabrics.

Laundering Linen

Read care labels on all linen items before laundering. Try to pretreat stains promptly. Those allowed to set are more difficult to remove. If unable to treat spots right away, sponge the area with cold water and launder as soon as possible.

Wash white and colorfast linens in hot water, using a warm or cold rinse. Treat noncolorfast items to a warm wash and warm or cold rinse. Add detergent or soap. Machine wash on a regular setting. A permanent press setting is advisable for linens which are wrinkle-resistant. Chlorine bleach may be used, but test colors for bleachfastness first.

Although linen has a natural stiffness, starching may be desirable for added crispness. There are various types of starches available; read directions carefully.

Dryer drying calls for a regular heat setting. Use a permanent press setting for linens that are wrinkle-resistant. Linens taken from the dryer while still slightly damp are perfect for ironing. Linen should be uniformly damp and ironed until completely dry, for best result. To store for later ironing, simply smooth and roll damp linen, place in a plastic bag and refrigerate.

How To Iron Linen

Use a moderately hot iron. Lightweight fabrics do not require as hot a temperature as heavier ones. Ironing on the right side enhances the natural sheen. Always iron damask on both sides to increase its luster. To bring up embroidery, place face down on a pad or mat of heavy flannel or pad of thin, sponge rubber covered with a cloth and press. To protect open work or delicate lace, use a thin pressing cloth or tissue. When ironing round cloths, begin at the outer edge and iron with a circular motion toward the center.

Avoid pressing in crease lines when ironing tablecloths, napkins, and large pieces to be stored. This can cause breaks in the linen cloth and needless strain on the fabric. Allow pieces to dry thoroughly, then fold loose or roll up. Tubes of cardboard or brown paper serve well as cores for rolling linens.

Store linens away from heat. Avoid cedar-lined drawers or chests as the oil fumes may tend to dull linens. For long-term storage, do not starch linen since starch may attract moths.

What's New

New Drip Irrigation Tubing Is Immune to Stress Cracks

Drip irrigation tubing is now being made from a tougher, more resilient form of polyethylene that is immune to one of the grower's worst enemies: stress cracking caused by weathering, kinking, farm chemical and other hazards.

The new tubing, latest member of the Orangeburg SP line, is not even stress cracked by forcibly attached fittings and emitters, and easily withstands abrasion, temperature extremes and freeze-thaw cycles. It has exceptional ultra-violet resistance.

The polyethylene formulation used is P34 (3406), a high density ultra-high molecular weight type. Its performance characteristics are far superior to commonly used P33 (3306) and P23 (2306), which are easier to extrude but lack the molecular weight necessary to preclude stress cracking.

Strength of the Orangeburg SP 3406 persists at temperatures that soften ordinary drip tubing. It maintains a PPI design stress rating of 315 psi even at a scorching 180 degrees F. Tensile strength of the material is 4500 psi. Chemically, the new tubing was unaffected by over 1000 hours in the industry's standard Igepol test.

Orangeburg SP 3406 is made in 1000-ft. coils with an inside diameter of .580 in. to match standard fittings. It will accept almost any style of emitter, and is available with working pressures of 60, 75 and 90 psi at 73.4 degrees F. Solanco FFA wins parliamentary procedure contest at Red Rose Event

By MELISSA PIPER

WILLOW STREET — Nearly 100 Lancaster County FFA members participated in the annual Red Rose parliamentary procedure and public speaking contest held at the vo-tech school here on Wednesday.

Six teams battled for the top place in the parliamentary procedure competition with the Solanco FFA team capturing the first place honors. The Cloister FFA Chapter from Ephrata High School placed second with Penn Manor taking third and Grassland FFA coming in fourth.

Solanco's team was composed of eight sophomores including Dan Hershberger, Axel Linde, Les Hershey, Rich Crider, Ron Clark, Dave Cunningham, Brent Hess and Sam Long.

Brent Hess and Les Hershey, who acted as president and vice president of the team, noted that the members had spent about 20 hours in preparation for the event. "It meant a lot of time," Hess explained, "but today was worth it."

Ron Mummau
Solanco FFA

Hershey admitted that the most difficult job in learning the procedures was to go through all the business at an evenly spaced interval. "We had to learn how to get through every motion without undue waiting," the sohpomore noted.

Judges for the parliamentary procedure event - Dick Woods and Jerry Schaeffer - told the participating teams that the competition had been keen and the skills demonstrated were of high quality.

Ron Mummau, also representing Solanco High School, placed first in the junior division of the public speaking contest. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Mummau, Oxford R1, the youth entitled his speech, "Why are Hogs Despised?"

Members of the Solanco FFA Parliamentary Procedure Team took the top honors during the Red Rose competition held on Wednesday afternoon. Sophomores participating are (back row from left) Dan Herschberger, Axel Linde, Les Hershey, Rich Crider and Ron Clark. (Front row from left) Dave Cunningham, Brent Hess and Sam Long.

Lindford Weaver
Grassland FFA

The youth has been taking swine fattening projects in FFA and works on a dairy farm next Oxford after school.

A Grassland FFA'er, Linford Weaver, captured the top award in the senior division of the public speaking contest. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester M. Weaver, Jr., East Earl R2, Weaver spoke on world hunger.

The top placing winners in each of the contests will be competing in the area FFA contest slated for April 20 at the Brownstown Vo-tech School.

Schuler leads 4-H dairy club

David Schuler was recently elected president of the Eastern Berks 4-H Dairy Club. Other officers elected at the March 26 meeting were: Marie Herbert, vice president; Martha Herbert, secretary; Ruth Schuler and Nancy Latshaw, news reporters; Wendy Shaw, treasurer.

Eight new members were added this year, which brings the total membership to 23. The next meeting will be held April 23.

Our liquid starter can help you save your most precious commodity.

Nothing's more precious at planting time than time. This has been a major reason why so many farmers have switched to liquid starter.

One man can load liquid starter two thirds faster than two men can load dry bulk starter. With liquid, he can load three-and-a-half times faster than one man loading dry bagged fertilizer.

Besides speed and ease of handling, ARCADIAN® liquid offers other advantages at planting time. Pesticides can usually be added to ARCADIAN liquid for a free piggyback application.

And because our liquid fertilizers made with ARCADIAN POLY-N®are rich in polyphosphates, they supply more available nutrients. So your crop gets a head start and you get reduced weed problems, earlier harvests, lower drying costs and greater efficiency from your fertilizer dollars. So if you want a better starting starter, stop in and see us today.

May milk price announced

ALEXANDRIA, Va. - Market Administrator Joseph D. Shine announced today that the Class I (fluid) milk price for Federal Order No. 4 is $11.38 per hundredweight for May 1976, an increase of 35 cents from the $11.03 April price. The Class I price was $9.64 last May. Prices are announced for milk testing 3.5 percent butterfat, f.o.b. plants located within 55 miles of Philadelphia, Pa. and also within 75 miles from the nearer of Washington, D. C. or Baltimore, Md. A six-cent per hundredweight direct-delivery differential is applicable for producer milk received at plants located within 55 miles of Philadelphia.

Shine also announced a Class II milk price of $8.57 per hundredweight for the month of March 1976 and a producer butterfat differential of 9.9 cents for March.

The Market Administrator stated tha these class prices are based on a March 1976 Minnesota - Wisconsin manufacturing milk price of $8.60 per hundredweight at 3.5 percent butterfat. The butterfat differential is based on the average Grade A (92 Score) bulk wholesale butter price at Chicago for March of $.8605 per pound.

Price index drops

HARRISBURG - The March 15, 1976 Index of Prices Received by Pennsylvania Farmers was two percent below the previous month but 14 percent above a year earlier, according to the Crop Reporting Service.

Higher priced for hay, potatoes, calves, sheep and lambs, milk cows, turkeys and most grains were more than offset by the decrease in the price received for apples, hogs, steers and heifers, dairy and poultry products. The purchasing power of prices received was two percent points below February, but five percentage points above a year ago.

Nationally, the Index of Prices Received decreased about two percent over the past month, but was 12 percent above a year ago. Contributing most to the decrease since mid-February were lower prices for hogs, milk, eggs and cattle. The purchasing power at the U.S. level decreased two percentage points since mid-February, but was three percentage points above a year ago.

Berks Co. political candidates grilled by County Farmers Association and Grange

By JUDY MITCHELL
Berks Co. Correspondent

The Berks County Farmers' Association presented 18 candidates for public office to Association and Grange members in a "Measure the Candidate Program" on April 2 at the Agricultural Center in Leesport. Charles Mohn, executive secretary of the PFA who moderated the meeting, first stated the ground rules which would be followed.

In order drawn by lot, each candidate gave a three minute talk, during which time officials of the Association screened questions submitted by the audience. A total of six questions were then presented to the candidates, three of which were answered by each candidate for the United States Congress, and three by each of the Senatorial candidates. A summary of each candidate's talk, his answers to questions directed to him, and a closing statement follows.

Q1 - Will you support provisions of Capper Volstead Act (the co-op law)?

Q2 - What is your view on more tax funding for non-public schools?

Q3 - Would you favor an earned income to support our schools rather than real estate taxes?

Q4 - What is your feeling on the use of atomic energy?

Q5 - How can government spending be cut?

Q6 - Do you favor an economic formula which includes cost of production and consumer demand for establishing milk prices to producers in place of Milk Control Board?

John D. Rausch

"I'm employed by the Wyomissing Area School District as a teacher and also as transportation supervisor. I own a farm near Bernville. I think there are a number of issues that are going to be important . . . 1. Welfare . . . we have problems . . . there are individuals in that particular category who could work, and I think they should be put to work. There is also a lot of talk about consolidating local governments. I think we should not consolidate local governments. There are a number of other issues. In the area of banks: we need as many local banks as possible. The local bank is the backbone of your economy. We don't need a statewide banking system. In the area of rights and responsibilities: we have criminal rights, we have students rights. Where are the responsibilities for these individuals? We have things for the poor, rightfully so. We have things for the wealthy-loopholes. Where are the things for the middle guy? Also, I do not think we should eliminate local tax collectors."

Q2 - "I deal with a bill every day which provides that we must transport students 10 miles outside of the school district whether it is a private school or a public school, and I cannot see going in that direction. First of all we need the money for the public school and after that we want to worry about the private schools."

Q3 - "In my mind there is no fair tax. A state graduated income tax . . . will not help you. (It) will have loopholes. A graduated income is going to cost you more.

Q 6 - "I normally keep up on this when I read the PFA Voice. I am normally free-market minded, however, on the milk question . . . we need some kind of control. The Pennsylvania milk producer would be at the mercy of the big supermarket chains. He has a higher feed cost. He could not compete on the fluid level. I think we would need this or else we wouldn't have any Pennsylvania dairymen.

Closing remarks: "When you pay an individual $15,600 plus . . . he should work for you full time. I would be a full-time legislator. My opponent has stated in the past he would not be."

Stephen Postupak

"I'm from Tamaqua. I was born and raised on a farm, indirectly associated with the agri business. There are many issues facing us. First, the federal estate tax laws must be revised. Sold estates generally wind up in the hands of developers. The last revision of this law was in 1941 . . . finally the Congress did get around to considering changing it. However, the farmer himself must become involved in the structure of the new bill. It should contain long-term provisions for payment of estate taxes without interest. In regards to . . . pollution controls: the state environmental hearing board will call the shots in what cropping practices you dare use. We're going to lose control . . . and this is going to impede production of farm products. We're playing a dangerous game when we let decisions in the hands of militant EPA bureaucrats. As far as grain exports . . . if we can plant it, and package it, I say we should sell it."

Q1- ". . . we are making a complete study on it. I don't want this to sound like a political runaround, but I don't want to make a public statement on this until I am sure in what direction on this I want to go."

Q4 - "I am as against atomic energy as much as I am against taking the excess profits from co-ops. Coming from the anthracite coal region . . . I think we should conduct some research in this respect to try to put our people back to work in the Northern part of the district.

Q5 - "We can start by electing a congressman who's concerned about dificit spending and the national debt."

Closing remarks: "I'm asking the Republicans to support me in the coming primaries and we'll discuss the other issues I had a little further into general elections."

Thomas R. Caltagirone

"I'm from the city. I'm going to be facing choices of legislation about farming problems if I do get elected. I want to know what those problems are. I'm a former teacher ... presently working as a real estate associate. Some issues of concern ... education - better relationships with the school districts and the officials. Judiciary, support for an additional judge for Berks Co. Tax reform, use of taxes should be accounted for ... no new taxes or increases. Land use - first priority is for human needs. Needs of the elderly. Open records ... legislators' voting records should be made available to the public at all times. I will maintain a full time office if elected and I will be a full-time legislator.

Q2 - "I am against any state or federal funds going to any of these private institutions whether they be Catholic or Protestant. I feel there is a strict division in the Constitution put there for a very important reason, and I think it should be followed to the letter of the law.

Q3 - I'm against any form of tax increase. What I'd like to see is a complete reevaluation of the entire tax structure in Pennsylvania.

Q 6 - I'll be very honest with you. I don't know what would be better for the farmer. I think he should tell his representative ... how he best feels he could survive with either of these two.

Closing remarks: We can always learn. There is legislation that is going to be affecting the farmers, and I come from the city. I want to know what the problems are so I can vote intelligently on that legislation.

Richard A. Hartman

"I've been a borough councilman in the Mohnton Navy Yard for the last eight years. I feel this experience is municipal government is very important. Taxes in the borough of Mohnton haven't been raised in 12 years. As a state legislator I would have a district office with regular hours ... to hear the problems of the people. Also, I think a legislator ought to get around to the township and the borough council meetings because ... that's where the action is in your area. I do realize that you people are very concerned about soil conservation. Last week I had the pleasure of going around on a farm getting a few ideas about soil conservation. If I would be a legislator ... I certainly would do my bid for the farmer on soil conservation.

Q 2 - "I am against that. I don't see where public funds should go for private education."

Q 3 - "What scares me about income taxes is ... all the tax gimmicks that a man in a large income bracket can use to defend himself legally. What would happen in the state if you had a graduate income tax? All the special groups would get to your legislature ... and the middle class would be paying all the taxes."

Q 6 - " ... there are two gentlemen in the audience tonight who as farmers would help me on a question like that. I would act under advisement by farmers who know something about the question and also have the answer."

Closing remarks: "Farming is part of the free enterprise system that we know today. Free enterprise such as the farmer has made America great, and let's keep it that way."

Jerry Fisher
speaking for
Harold R. Brown

I think that many of you may have heard of Harold Brown because he's been fighting Met Ed. He is a fighter, a hard worker. He's honest, and when I look at a candidate I always look to see if they're an honest man because I believe if a candidate is honest, he'll do good things for people. I can assure you - I was raised on a farm; I live on a farm; I was in 4-H; I'm going to stay in farming; I work for an agricultural business; someday my brother and I will probably be running my father's farm down in Oley - I would not be upset with a councilman right now from the city, Mr. Harold Brown, if he was in Harrisburg, because I know he would listen and he would fight for what he thought was right." (Did not answer questions for the cnadidate.)

Rod Fisher
Gus Yatron

"Most of you know Gus Yatron personally and you know his record, and you have supported him in the past. Gus Yatron is running on his record. I think if you and I go into the voting booth, we make a decision as to who we'll vote for on the basis of three questions: 1. Does the man vote in my interest? 2. Is he available to listen to me.? 3. If I have a problem, will he help me?. And if you ask those three questions about Gus Yatron, you'll vote for him again this year.

Q 1 - "I can't answer that question but there is someone here who maybe can." (Called on Warren Lamb who had raised the question with the Congressman in Washington recently.) Lamb replied: "He was concerned that co-ops generally serve a beneficial purpose and he does not want to see anything drastic done in an emotional way that would distrub the functions that the co-ops are serving."

Q 4 - " ... should we go forward with a crash program ... no ... primarily because of the technological question raised about the safety of nuclear reactors ... There are other alternative energy sources available - geothermal, solar ... without going into an atomic energy program."

Q 5 - "Gus Yatron is the only area member of Congress who has consistently voted against raising the federal debt ceiling. In addition ... voted to cut food stamps, foreign aid, government regulation, and in those three areas are ways that ... spending can and is being cut."

Closing remarks: "Gus Yatron is running for his fifth term ... I'm able to make that statement ... because he's done something right in the previous four. You know what his record is."

Lynn F. Boyer

"I'm a commissioner in Muhlenberg Township ... in my second term of office. I know what local government means to people. The elimination of local government is a mistake ... the state government is headed

High germination, early emergence and seedling vigor are bred-in to all Funk's G-Hybrids Plant them early in the spring, even with minimum tillage And days later see those eager seedlings pop through the soil and spring to life in that direction. I'm not a quiter. When it comes down to fighting issues - I've been fighting in the last five years in Muhlenberg. In Muhlenberg township we have not raised our taxes since 1968. I've been a farm boy myself. I know the issues that involve the farmer. My brother is a farmer. I've lived in the city. I've lived in the county. I've been involved in both areas.

Q 2 - "We are concerned about the education of children. Most people are missing the issue here. If it is for the children, I am all for it. I happen to be a Protestant, I'm not a Catholic, but I feel that there is a need for that school system. I am against giving aid to further fatten the salaries of administrators.

Q 3 - "I'm personally against any increase in taxes. Until the school boards can show me that they can cut expenditures, I don't see the need for raising any taxes."

Q 6 - "I believe in a fair economic system - there's a law of supply and demand and if you can produce it - you get an excess and you want to get rid of the milk, you can lower your prices because that means you're going to produce it cheaper. Dut if it's going to cost you more money to produce it, then you ought to be able to get more money for that same product."

Closing remarks: "Farmers and engineers working together is not new. The solving of government problems is not for politicians or taxpayers, it's we the citizens of this democracy working together and I think there's no problem we cannot solve when we work together."

G. Roderick Snyder

"I'm from Robesonia. I'm a lawyer . . . practicing for about 17 years in Berks County. I will be for any legislation which reduces the cost of government to the people. I will work for less interference by the state government into the day to day living . . . Welfare . . . the problem is that the people out in the country are paying the freight for the people in the city. I'm not going to promise you (farmers) higher prices for your goods. What I would try to do is get the costs of your production down . . . that's where you're losing money.

Q 2 - "I would be against more money for non-public schools. As long as the population of the state is providing adequate schools, then I think they should use them or pay for their own."

Q 3 - "I think that the present real estate tax structure is inequitable; but before I could say that I would be definitely for another form of tax, I would have to see the whole package, because we may just be exchanging one form of inequity for another."

Q 6 - "If those two figures (cost of production and demand) can be worked out in a fair and equitable manner, then maybe that's a good way. Until you would have more facts and know more of the details, I don't think anybody can give you a truthful answer."

Closing remarks: "I hope that you can find it in your mind and heart that in April, just three weeks from now, you can try to give me a vote."

Marvin Heller Jr.

"I am a write-in candidate for the 11th District. As a result of that, I have a most difficult road to overcome as far as getting my name in the general election. I have to do it either through a sticker campaign or a write-in campaign. I am appealing basically to Republicans. I've been an attorney in Reading for the past three years. I am active in community affairs and am on the board of directors of the Council of Churches of Reading, the Children's Home. I'm also involved in United Way. I volunteer my time in the Reading School District to teach . . . a course that I've developed.

Q 2 - "I would have to say no. If we come to a point where we have more money, I don't know if we ever will, then I might change my decision."

Q 3 - ". . . the local control of our school districts is the most important single thing that we can think about in terms of this tax. Until I would be convinced that the tax structure would be more equitable and fair and that we would have the control of this money, I could not support any bill of this nature."

Q 6 - "I'd have a little trouble saying yes to that question because I don't think what people need or demand in one area of the state may be applicable to another. I think the Milk Marketing Board, however, needs a vast overhaul."

Closing remarks: "I have a difficulty ahead of me. I am a write-in candidate. This is a two party system . . . and I would hope that I am able to . . . be back here again in a few more months."

John S. Davies

"I'm the incumbent Republican. The main thing for a legislature is to serve the needs of his constituency and that's what I've tried to do. I think there are many issues. One thing that I don't like is the subterfuge that is used under many bills and the way in which they're presented as one thing when they're not quite that way. One of the things that is important is not just to service the people but ... address the people to the facts. We can go into the budgetary matters ... I've voted against every increase, even our own expense increase, and I intend to continue that as long as we don't get the efficiencies in government that we're supposed to get."

Q 2 - "I'd have to abide by the court decision, and the court decisions are pretty clear on that. There are inequities in the aid to parochial schools which can actually create programs that are better in parochial schools than they are in public schools. I proposed an amendment to a bill in House which would make this impossible."

Q 3 - "I would rather see the state funding of it come from any increases that were needed in the flight income tax ... simply because that's what the constituency said in the last 400-person survey that I have taken. I would favor some sort of freeze on the property tax."

Q 6 - "No matter how you cut it, it would be best to get something that is an input to this area ... that this size producer in Berks County would have some kind of input into the formula, if not, then some kind of regionalization that they would have the input into the Board or the selection of the Board."

Closing remarks: "I listen ... and I try to get that input. I've sponsored bills ... solar energy bills; I put the accountability amendments in the education bill. I believe that's the kind of legislation we need in Harrisburg."

Michael A. O'Pake

"I've tried the best I could as one human being to represent a quarter of a million people who are in the 11th Senatorial District. No matter what is said about issues ... the key when you go in the ballot box is to find a candidate that you can rely on ... you can trust ... that not only talks but listens and trys to reflect the wishes of his constituents. My goal when I entered government ... was an attempt to make government more responsive to the people and that's what I've tried to do, not only in Harrisburg ... but by maintaining a full-time Senate office ... to try to take care of the needs of the people in Berks County. Sometimes we get up to 60 or 80 telephone calls a day from people who have problems with state government. I hope those phones keep ringing. I run on my record."

Q 2 - "The aid per pupil in the non-public school system comes out to about $50 a pupil ... balance that with the $750 per pupil which is the public school subsidy reimbursement from the state for every pupil attending public school. The question is can we afford not to continue educating the non-public school children at the very limited, constitutionally defined road of which we are going."

Q 3 - "A package of bills which I've introduced proposes to do this ... phase out the property tax over the next five years as it relates to education. I see no relationship between ownership of property and the educational needs of the community."

Q 6 - "If a question of this would ever arrive and come in the form of legislation, what I would do is refer to my agricultural advisory committee and they could tell me how it would relate to them as a practical matter, because when you talk about formulas you can be in very dangerous water."

Closing remarks: "Farmers are no different than other people in Pennsylvania. They want a fair share out of government ... and that's what I hope I've tried to do. I've served on the Agricultural Committee, I've worked with my own Agricultural Advisory Committee, and I hope you'll give me the opportunity to do it for another four years."

Lester K. Fryer

"I have been privileged to represent the 130th district for seven consecutive terms - 14 years. I am quite proud of the records that I have made in Harrisburg. I run on that record. I am a member of the Agricultural Committee. I am aware of your problems. I also have been the prime sponsor of the silo exemption law which merely treats farmers in the same sense as industry is treated. I was the prime sponsor of the tax exemption of the nine cents a gallon tax for our volunteer firemen and rescue units and ambulances. Once again, I run on my record and I invite your inquiries."

Q 2 - "I have voted consistently against state aid to non-public schools because I felt as a representative I was reflecting the majority viewpoint of the people of the district I represent. I also feel that there is a problem with the Constitutionality of the tradition of the separation of Church and State."

Q 3 - "The answer is simply no. The earned income is an unfair tax because it is directed against the working man."

Q 6 - "I don't know, it seems as though the problem defies solution. Maybe the fellow that does come up with the solution will find out that the Good Lord is back here on earth."

Closing remarks: "I have my job application in to return to Harrisburg. I invite your inspection of that, and if you would have a man to go up there full-time, 100 percent representing no other interest except the people, I invite your support and your vote."

John J. Murphy, Jr.

"I spent eighteen years on a farm myself. I have very strong feelings about farm land. I have a great wealth of feeling about the breaking up of farms. I'm a solicitor for the planning commission of district township, which is a very rural township. Mr. Fryer tells you about a silo bill and a bill giving a nine cent rebate on some gasoline tax - I don't think that really is fourteen years worth of record. The image that I would like to form in your mind is the image of one who is speaking for and who is capable of planning and dealing with change. I entered this race and prepared a twenty question questionaire which I mailed to nine thousand odd registered democrats in the 130th district. The single greatest response which I have received . . . has been, 'My God, why hasn't someone been asking me before.' I promise you leadership which I think is far and away the most important consideration this year."

Q 2 - " . . . the responses which have been returned to me indicate quite convincingly that . . . the voters of the 130th district are against it . . . a moral dilemna for me."

Q 3 - "I would be very much in favor of such a tax replacing our present real estate tax structure."

Q 6 - "We have entirely too much government control over all phases of our lives. I think I would be tentatively in favor of such a formula."

Closing remarks: "The race between Mr. Fryer and myself is essentially a race between 14 years of his record versus my promise that I can and will do a lot better."

Norman Bertasavage

"I'm from Pottsville. I'm a 39 year old retired NCO. I'm not a farmer. I can't talk to you about farm issues as such. Decided . . . the way government is going right now, I don't like. I don't have any answers to any of our problems . . . what I have are questions, particularly: where we are; where we're going; and what we want to be when we get there. The American farmer is an endangered species. The average farmer is 51 years old. The average cost of starting a new farm is over a quarter of a million dollars. Where are the young farmers going to get the capital to buy that kind of farm?"

Q 1 - "I told you before that I had no answers but I had questions, and this would be one of them I can only promise you that I will ask what your opinion is and then formulate mine to try to represent that."

Q 4 - "My answer to nuclear energy is not only no, but hell no. I base that on one simmple fact - we know the dangers."

Q 5 - "I am against inefficient government . . . too many programs that overlap. We solve the problem we have right now without looking where it's going to lead us."

Closing remarks: "I'm running, not to replace a Democrat with a Republican, but I'm running to replace a man who hasn't been doing the job we should expect from a Congressman."

Lionel Long

"I was born and raised in the city. I don't know too much about farming. I've been a school teacher . . . I presently sell real estate. I'm interested in people. I think farming is very important. I'd like to know why, for instance, when the price of food goes up, the farmers don't get any more money for their products. I would like to know more about why it costs so much money to get into farming. People are moving off the farms at alarming rates. We have to eat. And people in the city, we can't feed ourselves, we need farmers. Other important issues: taxes . . . the public utility commission; an alternate method of school financing; welfare; communication."

Q 2 - "There is no way we could stand the influx of students from parochial and non-public schools that would be coming into the system."

Q 3 - " . . . it would take some of the burden off the property owner and more equitably spread out the distribution to everybody who works, rather than just people who have property."

Q 6 - "I think milk should be at a market price just like everything else and the politics in the Milk Marketing Board and that whole situation really scares me."

Closing remarks: "When I get to Harrisburg, I'm going to be very people oriented and try to get government moving again."

Ernest W. Werstler, Jr.

"The real job of a person in Harrisburg is to listen to the people. You have to tell me what you feel the issues are and what you feel Harrisburg should do for you. When I'm elected I'll have an office . . . but I'll also get out to the towns and villages in my district. You won't have to come to me. I'll come to you, because that's my job. Born on my grandfather's farm. A lifelong resident of the Boyertown area. Employed as a chief cost accountant for Reading Industries. Member of the Boyertown recreation board . . ."

Q 2 - "I am concerned about the quality of education . . . in our public schools I see no way I could say we must or should increase aid to non-public schools."

Q 3 - "If it would be a fair and equitable tax with no loopholes - yes. But until I see a concrete proposal before me, I really can't give you a definite yes or no."

Q 6 - "I would have to talk to the people in the district and find out what the people thought. That would be my job."

Closing remarks: "If you give me your support and your vote, when I get to Harrisburg, may I borrow the phrase from an airline: I'm going to move my tail for you."

James J. Gallen

"I've served . . . in the legislature for the past 12 years. Nobody has a better record in voting against spending than Jim Gallen. This week we fought the battle of the budget in Harrisburg. It is my opinion that this budget is $400,000,000 short, and that we are going to be facing that problem next January. I'll continue to oppose this budget until the Governor finds a way to convince me that there are enough revenues to balance the budget or that he is going to go along with some very severe cuts."

Q 2 - "I have consistently voted against this aid but I think the time is coming when the problem is going to be such that it is going to be in the best interest of the taxpayer to keep the non-public schools open."

Q 3 - "There have been some new proposals which have not as yet emerged, but they are being studied . . . a system of personal taxation as opposed to real estate taxation for the support of public schools. It does make some sense."

Closing remarks: "My concerns, I think, are the concerns of you. I don't think the Farmers' Association has ever come to me and asked me to support a certain position and I haven't supported."

Chester Co. miss receives top awards at Octorara banquet

By MELISSA PIPER

ATGLEN - During the awards ceremony at the 19th Annual Octorara FFA Banquet, a host of honors were bestowed on the chapter's president - not an uncommon occurrence - unless the president is a petite brunette lass of 18 and one of the few female FFA president's in the nation.

Sharon Henley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kennard Henley, Jr., Cochranville R1, garnered a total of seven prestigious awards that included the DeKalb Award for the Outstanding Senior and the outstanding Chapter Farmer award. The youth also captured awards for record keeping, showmanship, scholarship, state record book contests and for receiving the Keystone Degree at the State Level.

Sharon's projects have been centered around the family's Ayrshire dairy herd in which the youth has taken an active part both in raising animals and in showing all across the country, and while cultivating a strong background in agriculture, the FFA'er has chosen nursing as a career.

Duane Hershey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hershey, Cochranville R1, was named the Star Chapter Greenhand during the ceremonies at the high school here on Monday evening. The youth was also awarded a proficiency medal in swine production.

Other proficiency awards were presented to the following FFA members: Wayne Stoltzfus - ag mechanics; Kenneth Graham - Ag Service; Barry Greist - beef production; Randy Reel - crop production; Dave Ebenshade - dairy beef; Bruce Wrigley - dairy calf; Bruce Yoder - dairy production; Brian Yoder and Bruce Yoder - garden production; Dave Rzucidlo - homestead improvement; John Whiteside - placement in ag production; Bruce Yoder - public speaking; Bruce Wrigley - sheep production; Brian Yoder - welding; John Whiteside - salesmanship; Jerry Fisher - scholarship; Elvin Mast - scholarship; Clifford Blank scholarship; Brian Yoder and Bruce Yoder - record book keeping.

Sharon Henley won several outstanding awards at the Octorara FFA Banquet held this week in Atglen. The miss was named the Chapter Farmer and recipient of the DeKalb award. Duane Hershey was named the Star Chapter Greenhand.

Tax change approved at annual meeting

MCMP executive sees good farm outlook

COCKEYSVILLE, Md. - Delegates to the 58th annual meeting of the Maryland Cooperative Milk Producers unanimously passed a resolution which would grant tax exemption to farm estates and such properties would have their value determined on the basis of agriculture use.

Other matters which were taken up during the business meeting concerned coop mergers, advertising, and minimum butterfat content of milk.

The question of a merger of MCMP with Inter-State came up, and was answered: "There are no plans to merge with Inter-State at the present time."

A motion was made that "new blood" be considered more frequently when directors are elected. Discussing the issue, one member took the floor to relate some advice which had been given him by his grandfather; "Don't do anything which would be detrimental to your cooperative."

Advertising programs of the mid-Atlantic marketing area were highly praised by some members of the group and a suggestion was made on whether or not the butter market could be made more competitive.

Legislation in Maryland is currently considering lowering the butterfat standard for fluid milk from 3.5 per cent to 3.25. General manager Ralph Strock noted that every state surrounding Maryland has made this switch and it has put Maryland bottlers into a handicapped situation. MCMP has taken a neutral stand on the issue this year, although the Pennmarva Federation, of which MCMP is a part, has endorsed the measure.

The meeting, held here at the Hunt Valley Inn, was highlighted by addressed from MCMP president Wessel and Strock's general manager's report.

Strock began his message with an appraisal of the nation's economy, noting that a "pretty effective restraining harness has been put on inflation," then adding, "if we can find some sort of restraining harness to put on the big spenders in our Congress, so they don't undo the efforts of the recent past, we will continue on the road to economic recovery. In fact, if we do exactly the opposite of what the majority of the joint economic committee of Congress recommended in a report in early March, we will have the blueprint for recovery."

The general manager pointed out that when the price of a product is too high, consumers don't buy. The example he used was the construction trade because labor and other costs have increased so much so that they're out of reach of potential home buyers. The result has been a 50 per cent unemployment rate within the construction industry.

Turning his attention to the farm economy specifically, the executive said:

"Much has changed in the farm economy in the past decade and especially in the last five years. Agriculture has moved from a government supported farm income to a market supported farm income. Taxpayers no longer shell out 4-billion dollars in agricultural subsidies. Farmers no longer are reminded by the media and by their city cousins that Uncle Sam is storing government owned grain stocks at a cost to taxpayers of up to a million dollars a day nor is that grain being held over your head to bend your will and your back in the direction of still greater government intervention. And since this is the Bicentennial Year, it is appropriate to suggest that with this independence comes dignity. You are your own man.

"Agricultural productivity is at a record high and this gives us the edge in world markets. Net farm income in the past three years is the highest for any three-year period. More sons and daughters are locating on farms. The average age of farmers is moving down rather than up. In 1974, 19 percent of all farmers were under 35 years of age compared to only 15 percent in 1970.

Touching on a number of topics stretching from global agriculture to taxes and price supports, Strock concluded that "things don't look too bad for agriculture."

Regarding milk prices, Strock said:

"We are optimistic that resale prices have not hurt sales noticeably and in this middle Atlantic area we do not anticipate any great surge in production over a year ago. Barring some misguided tampering with import quotas, some bad advice from within coop ranks, and some over-optimism in states like Wisconsin where production is running seven per cent over a year ago. Dairy farmers with average size and efficiency should find the going favorable."

MCMP economists forecast milk prices to drop below $10.00 per hundredweight (blend price) this month and that the low point of $9.61 is likely to be reached in May and June. The second half of the year should see gradual increases again with the December blend price being pegged at $9.92 per hundredweight.

Standard or Itemized Deductions?

Is there any easy way of choosing between itemizing tax deductions and taking the standard deduction? Not really; you still have to do the arithmetic. To get an idea, though, add up your obvious deductions - interest paid, state and local taxes, contributions, medical expenses and casualty losses. If this total is more than 16 percent of your income, chances are you'll be better off itemizing.

Bill to guarantee payments

WASHINGTON — The House Agriculture Committee last week approved by a 35 to 2 vote a bill (H. R. 8410) designed to assure livestock producers they will get payment for the animals they send to packing plants.

The bill would amend the 55-year old Pakcers and Stockyards Act by requiring any packer with average annual purchases of over $500,000 to be bonded and to hold all livestock, meats, and proceeds there from in trust until all producers who had sold livestock to the packer on a cash basis had received payment for such livestock.

The existing Act outlaws certain unfair and discriminatory trade practices, but heretofore had not been interpreted to require packer bonding. The pending measure would also bring brokers and other wholesalers of meat under the regulatory jurisdiction of the Secretary of Agriculture. However, it is not intended to apply to restaurants, hotels, clubs and similar establishments.

Prompted in part by the bankruptcy proceedings on Omaha more than a year ago involving American Beef Packers, Inc., in which some 900 producers claimed losses of approximately $20 million, the Committee conducted public hearings and then drafted the bill. Committee Chairman Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., expressed hope the measure would soon reach the House Floor for a vote.

Other principle provisions of the bill would:

1. Give the Secretary of Agriculture authority to order packers to cease and desist from operating while insolvent except under such conditions as he may prescribe. The bill also gives the Secretary specific authority to request the Attorney General to seek a temporary injunction in federal district court, pending administrative action, to prevent irreparable injury to producers or members of the industry which would result if persons subject to the Act were permitted to operate while insolvent or otherwise in violation of the Act.

2. Authorize the filing of a complaint in court seeking damages against any persons subject to the Act arising out of his violation of any provisions of the Act, or of an order of the Secretary relating to purchase, sale or handling of livestock.

3. Require packers, market agencies and dealers purchasing livestock to deliver to the seller or his agent at the point of transfer of possession of the animals, by check or wire transfer of funds the full amount of the purchase price before the close of the next business day unless otherwise agreed in writing. Any delay or attempt to delay payment would constitute an unfair practice in violation of the Packers and Stockyards Act.

Provide that the packer bonding and prompt payment provisions would prompt state laws on the same subject.

Meat production decreases

HARRISBURG - Red meat production in Pennsylvania during February 1976 was one percent below a year ago. Slaughter of meat animals was up for cattle and calves, but down for hogs, sheep and lambs, according to the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service. Cattle slaughter increased 16 percent, calves 32 percent, while hog slaughter decreased 21 percent and sheep and lambs were two percent below February a year ago.

Nationally, total red meat production during February 1976 was up one percent from a year ago. Beef production increased eight percent from February 1975, and veal was 24 percent higher. Hog production was down 13 percent, lamb and mutton down ten percent from a year ago.

O. J. Roberts school held FFA banquet

The Owen J. Roberts Chapter of the FFA held their 21st annual banquet in the high school cafeteria on March 30. In attendance were 60 FFA members, and 180 guests, parents, and faculty.

Guests included Honarary Chapter Degree recipients Mr. and Mrs. Chet Rought of Buttonwood Farm; State FFA vice-president, Lyold Hoover, and state reporter, John Stoltzfus. Also in attendance were Stanley Landis, superintendant of the Chester County Intermediate Unit; Roy Claypool, district superintendant; Joseph Swatski, High School principal; Earl Grier, vice-principal; seven school board members, and county agent Glenn Shirk.

Awards were presented by teachers of Agriculture Neil Burtner, and Bernard Linn. Keystone Farmer Award winners Edwin Mast, Eugene Kulp, and David Nolan were recognized and awarded for their achievements in raising dairy animals. The Corn trophy was awarded to Eugene Kulp, while the beef trophy went to Noble Woodall. The agri-business cup went to David Nolan, the vegetable garden cup went to Robert Nuse, the Chapter Star Farmer went to David Nolan; and the Star Greenhand trophy went to Edward Kulp. FFA National Foundation Medals were awarded and FFA project winners were recognized.

LeHi cuts losses

ALLENTOWN - Lehigh Valley Cooperative Farmers this week reported increased sales and a substantial reduction in losses for the fiscal year ending January 31, 1976. At the same time, Robert P. Barry, president, told the annual meeting that he expects the Cooperative to realize a profit in the current year.

LeHi sustained a net loss of $1.85 million in fiscal 1975, compared to a loss of almost $3.0 million in 1974. Sales increased to over $92 million from $80 million the previous year.

Barry attributed the reduction in losses by over $1.1 million to the total reorganization of the Cooperative over the past two years. A computerized cost-control program was initiated as well as numerous changes to increase efficiency in production.

New items have been added to the LeHi product mix, including Dolly Madison all natural ice cream which will shortly have distribution throughout the Cooperative's marketing area. Other new specialty items will be announced in the near future, Barry said.

He cited two reasons for the continuing deficit: extreme pressure from competition in the milk business in markets served by LeHi's plant in Lansdale, and difficulties encountered in the cheese plant at Allentown. Both problem areas are expected to be resolved during the coming year, Barry said.

He predicted the Cooperative will turn the corner in fiscal 1976, with forecasts showing a budgeted profit.

At the meeting, the membership elected Harold Fabian of Bethlehem, Pa. as a director-at-large, and ratified the election of the following district directors: Barry P. Shirey of Middleburg, John E. Kreider of Lancaster, Norman W. Sollenberger, Fayetteville, and Joseph E. Corle of Martinsburg, Pa.

Lehigh Valley is both a manufacturing and marketing cooperative, distributing a full line of dairy products in five states. The Cooperative represents 600 farmers and in 1975 processed over 390 million pounds of milk.

Surgery practiced

Under the supervision of their 4-H leaders, some York County 4-H members practiced castrating and docking lambs at a recent meeting of the 4-H Lamb Club. The meeting was held April 1 at the home of Linda Ebaugh, Airville.

A business meeting followed. Two new members, Marc and Brad Robertson, were added to the roll. President Linda Ebaugh announced that dates and program of each meeting for the year. A committee was appointed to plan what the club will sell at the Maple Lawn Farms' Peach Festival later this month.

The next meeting is May 6 at the home of Donald Flory, Red Lion R4 to wash and trim sheep.

Farm no longer a last resort, it's a place of first choice

Editor's Note: The following thoughts and ideas on our nation's Bicentennial and the future of farming are those of Ralph Strock, general manager of Maryland Cooperative Milk Producers. He made the comments at his cooperative's annual meeting last month.

This is our country's bicentennial year. At such a time it is natural that so much will be said about the past. But as one writer put it - "There will be a certain selectivity in what is cited, depending on the current view of old ideas. As with other sacred writings, the selections vary with the gospel to be preached." For example - much will be heard of rights but little of duty or responsibilities. And yes, as the writer continues, we'll hear all about the intent to "promote the general welfare" but few will quote the lines "to secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity" because today's security and ease has replaced the concern for tomorrow - for posterity.

Farm people have a special interest in posterity. Farmers do few things that do not look more toward tomorrow than toward today. They go deeply in debt today for a brighter tomorrow. They plant today in the expectation of harvesting tomorrow. They practice soil and water conservation today for if they don't, there is no posterity - for them. They foster and develop and care for family relationships today to provide continuity for the cultivation of their acres and care of their herds tomorrow. They have an abiding interest in posterity.

In addition to posterity, farmers will be reminded of another attitude of this bicentennial year. They will be reminded especially of those lines from "America the Beautiful" which must stir the hearts of farm people and awaken and renew their faith in their country, the dignity of their calling, and their great endowment.

"Oh Beautiful for Spacious skies

For amber Waves of Grain

For Purple Mountain Majesties

Spacious skies, waves of grain, mountain majesties, fruited plain. These are words that will always have a special meaning to farmers because they are a part of it. In the years since that song was written, food and farmers somehow came to be taken for granted. They were even the butt of some very bad jokes. Not so today, Food has recaptured its importance. So we have come full circle in two centuries. This fact is important to farmers; important to their financial well being; important to their dignity. It is important to non-farm people; it is important to our nation and to our world - to posterity.

Now the production of one out of three acres of American farms is exported. Our best sons and daughters are attending colleges of agriculture and many of them are returning to the farm. It was not always so. The farm is no longer a place of last resort - rather a place of first choice. Even several of our congressmen with an all city constituency are scrambling to get on the house and senate agriculture committees. And labor union leaders suddenly aspire to dictate farm policy and presidential cabinet members - secretaries of labor, and secretaries of state - suddenly become instant experts in this burgeoning, highly efficient, highly capitalized, high risk growth industry. They want to play the game with your marbles and deprive you of the fruits of your labors, your industry and your risk bearing.

TB not eradicated

WASHINGTON - Cattle herds badly infected with tuberculosis have been found in McHenry County, Ill., and Posey County, Ind., the U.S. Department of Agriculture reported recently.

Animal health officials of USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service said that to date five infected herds have been located in McHenry County and three infected herds in Posey County. The McHenry County outbreak involves Holstein dairy cattle; and Posey County outbreak, purebred Angus beef cattle.

Officials said that gross lesions of tuberculosis were found in a number of animals from these herds - indicating that the disease had been present for some time.

"If you think tuberculosis in cattle has been eradicated, think again," said Dr. Ralph Bennett, who is in charge of APHIS's cattle tuberculosis eradication program.

REFRESHMENTS by LITTLE SWATARA CHURCH

Dairy import loophole closed

WASHINGTON — President Ford has acted to prevent evasion of U.S. import quotas on nonfat dry milk and other dry milks by mixing them with other ingredients.

He signed a proclamation, effective March 31, that establishes a zero import quota on such mixtures if they are capable of being processed further. This closes a loophole in the quota system created by the fact that dried milk is not classified as a dairy product if it is mixed with another ingredient which is the chief component of value in the mixture.

Prior to the President's action, which was recommended by Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz, nonfat dry milk, dried whole milk and other dried milks — all subject to strict quota limitations — could be brought in without limit by means of the mixing technique.

The possibility of import quota evasion through the mixing route has become a problem recently because of the worldwide surplus of dairy products, particularly nonfat dry milk. While the U.S. support price for nonfat dry milk is 62.40 cents per pound and wholesale market prices in the latter months of 1975 were in the 70 to 72 cents range, intense competition and export subsidization on the international market has depressed world prices to as low as 20-25 cents per pound f.o.b.

Import quotas are in effect for dried milks and most other dairy products pursuant to Section 22 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act, as amended, which provides that imports shall be restricted as necessary to prevent them from interfering with the Department of Agriculture's support program for milk.

Imports of nonfat - sugar mixtures from Canada which could be used in ice cream, confections and other products, began last November, following an importer's success in obtaining from the Customs Service a nonquota classification for the product. These imports were stopped after U.S. authorities persuaded the Canadian government to prohibit sales of government nonfat dry milk inventories for export to the United States. However, the breach in the quota system remained open, and intensive efforts by importers to find other foreign sources and to devise other mixture formulas underlined the need for formal action to bring the situation under control.

President Ford has directed the United States International Trade Commission to investigate the problem and submit recommendations for final action. The quota established by the Proclamation, which is No. 4423, will remain in effect until the President acts on the Commission's report. As part of its investigation, the Commission will hold a public hearing.

Imported prepared foods of the type sold in grocery stores are not affected by the action. Items "prepared for marketing to the retail consumer in the identical form and package in which imported" are specifically excluded from the new quota.

Refton steers okayed

The Zoning Hearing Board of Strasburg Township has granted the application of Adolf E. Frey for a special exception pursuant to Article VI, Section 602 of the Strasburg Township Zoning Ordinance to raise steers for 4-H, Future Farmers of America, vocational agriculture, or other similar educational projects in the village of Refton, Strasburg Township, Lancaster County.

The Board attached the following conditions and safeguards to its approval:

1. No more than two steers may be kept on the premises at any one time.

2. No steers may be on the premises except for the purposes proposed, to wit, 4-H, Future Farmers of America, vocational agriculture, or similar type programs.

3. At all times the steers must be adequately secured inside a fence, or, when being exercised, by a halter, so they are not a safety hazard.

4. Manure shall be disposed of as necessary to prevent a health hazard or odors.

Pesticide exams scheduled

Examinations for commercial pesticide applicators will be given in April in York, Adams and Franklin Counties, it was announced today by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

The examinations are scheduled for April 20 at the Adams County Extension Office R3, Lincolnway West, Gettysburg; April 21 at the Franklin County Extension Office, 191 Franklin Farm Lane, Chambersburg; and April 22 at the Farm Credit Building, 3301 West Market Street, York. All sessions begin at 1:00 p.m. and will be strictly for the administration of exams; no instructional or educational program will be presented.

Examinations will be offered in all commercial categories. Individuals may be tested in as many areas as they desire.

Study materials are available and may be purchased from Penn State University as an aid in preparing persons for these examinations.

According to federal and state laws, individuals who apply or supervise the application of restricted use pesticides will be required to become certified either as a private or commercial applicator. Certification must be accomplished prior to October 21, 1977.

Commercial applicators are persons engaged in the "business of applying pesticides," whereas private applicators limit their operation to raising agricultural commodities on their own or rented property. Exterminators, groundkeepers, custom crop applicators and public health operators would be examples of commercial pesticide applicators.

These examination sessions are being coordinated by Donald Lott, Pesticide Inspector for the Department of Agriculture. Anyone who has questions or plans to attend any of the sessions is advised to contact Lott at the Region VI Office, Box 419, Summerdale, Pa. 17093, or their local county agent's office.

Weed killers work best where soils have been treated with lime to reduce acidity, scientists at Penn State University have determined.

The research shows that the most common weed killers - the traizine herbicides such as atrazine, simazine, and cyanazine (Bladex) - often fail to control weeds on acid soils, especially in cornfields.

The findings could prove vital this spring for farmers troubled with quackgrass and fall panicum, among the worst weeds in Pennsylvania crops.

To neutralize acid soil, apply lime according to soil test recommendations early in the spring. The lime should be disked in if possible, not plowed down, since most herbicides are applied to the soil surface.

Land preservation discussed

LEBANON — The Pennsylvania Rural Area Development Committee convened a State Workshop on prime agriculture lands last month at the Treadway Inn here. Farmers, state and local government officials, business representatives, and conservationists were among the 75 persons meeting to discuss issues related to the preservation of a viable agricultural community and to recommend land use policies for agriculture preservation.

"The nation's future is tied to the future of its land," explained RAD Chairman Thomas E. King, associate director of the Cooperative Extension Service at Penn State. "Land use policy is a major public issue in Pennsylvania and the nation, yet there exists little expressly defined land use policy on any land of government, not even within the land-oriented U.S. Department of Agriculture."

The USDA is currently considering a national land use policy which could help guide the states in their land preservation activities. A major goal of the workshop, which was organized partly because of a USDA request for grass roots policy input, will be to make specific proposals as to what this policy should be. After assessing this input, USDA plans to encourage similar workshops in several other states before making any final policy decisions.

Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Robert Long, in delivering the keynote address, emphasized the need for government institutions to develop policies that are consistent with the growing concept of land as a limited resource. He stressed the importance of broad input into the policy making process, and charged the participants to develop strong recommendations concerning agricultural lands, based on their considerable and diverse expertise with land use issues.

The workshop was organized into five work groups, each of which attempted to define "prime agricultural lands," to analyze existing preservation efforts, and to discuss various alternatives, before making recommendations to the general session at the close of the workshop.

Craft classes set

The Chester County Extension Service of the Pennsylvania State University will offer courses in chair caning, quilting and upholstery.

Deadline for registration, Wednesday, April 14, 1976.

The Quilting course will be held on Mondays, May 3, 10, 17, 24 from 1:00 - 3:00 p.m. The series of four meetings will cover basic techniques for hand quilting. PFA members hold spring dinner meeting

By MELISSA PIPER

PARADISE — Three story hog houses, shipping grain by super-sonic transports and feeding animals recycled waste seems like a futuristic view of agriculture in the year 2000 but it is occurring now in our present lifetime according to Ken Cheatham, program director for the American Farm Bureau Federation.

"What was once predicted as being in the future is with us now and how many farmers are ready for the changes," Cheatham querried while speaking at the Lancaster County Farmer's Association spring meeting held here on Tuesday evening.

Representing the parent organization of the Pa. Farmer's Association and the Lancaster County group, Cheatham challenged the members to work diligently in pursuing agriculture to its fullest measure in order to strengthen the country. "People are too often afraid to take the first step," he noted. "We've been living in an age of the easy way out but farmers have proved that to be different."

Cheatham explained that agriculture had seen many changes over the past fifty years and that revolutions would be continuing in the future. "Young farmers need to be aggressive not complacent," the AFBF official noted. "We can go somewhere but if we want to take the trip we must be willing to take the first step and break the status quo."

The farm official concluded his remarks by telling the group that there is a fantastic future ahead and although it will mean a great deal of hard work, farmers who strive diligently will reach the goals ahead.

Earl Newcomer, president of the Lancaster County Association, noted that the membership of the farmer's group had grown by 154 persons during the past year with the state membership being at an all time high of 19,907. "We are still looking for a continued growth," Newcomer explained, "We think our organization is a good one and we encourage new members to join."

During the program, several Lancaster County PFA members received certificates for having attended the leadership training seminar held last year. Dave Muzzy, representing the regional PFA office presented awards to Earl and Ruth Newcomer, Abram Groff, Preston Newcomer, Jim Hess, Paul and Joyce Hartz, Marian Breneman and Guy and Jane Eshelman.

Musical entertainment for the evening was provided by Glenn Hough and a skit was presented by Luann Breneman and Larry Frey.

Carcass ID's changed

Beginning May 2, federally graded lamb will be identified to distinguish it from yearling mutton and mutton, as proposed in the Dec. 31 Federal Register, the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) announced.

On all federally graded lamb carcasses and wholesale cuts the word "Lamb" will appear intermittently between the shield-shaped USDA grademarks. Under existing regulations, mutton and yearling mutton are identified in a similar manner.

USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service (AMS) administers the meat grading program on a voluntary basis and users pay for the service they request. According to AMS officials, the new marking system was suggested by the National Wool Growers Association to better identify lamb and thus facilitate its marketing. USDA received 27 comments on the proposal - 18 from producer organizations and nine from individuals. All of those commenting were in favor of the proposal.

This amendment to the meat grading regulations is scheduled to be published in the April 2 Federal Register.

Holstein sales set new record

Two consignment sales sponsored by the Pennsylvania Holstein Ass'n, which were held at the Farm Show Building in Harrisburg, saw a total of 267 head consigned by Holstein breeders across the state sell to buyers from 13 states and Canada. The largest number went to California buyers, who purchased a total of 70 head at the two day event, March 25 and 26.

On Mar. 25 172 heifer calves born since May 1, 1975 sold in the State Calf Sale for a record breaking average of $851.00. The high selling calf at $2700.00 was Oak-Cress Elevation Mitzi, a daughter of Round Oak Rag Apple Elevation. She was consigned by Raymond & Marlin Getz, Myerstown, and purchased by Henry Massaro, Chowchilla, Calif. Second high at $2550.00 was another Elevation daughter consigned by James L Yoder, Chambersburg, and also purchased by Massaro.

Seven calves sold for prices of $2000.00 or more each, while another 40 sold for prices between $1000.00 and $2000.00

Demand was also high for the Cow, Bred Heifer, and Bull Sale on Friday, as the prices demonstrated. Six bulls averaged $1271; 12 cows averages $2050.00; and 77 bred heifers averaged $1055.00, for a combined average of $1194.00 on 95 head. This average also represents a new high for this sale, which was started in 1975.

The top selling bull was Pack-Herd Elevation Brian, consigned by Richard and Marilyn Packard, Troy. He was purchased for export by the Pennsylvania Holstein Ass'n for $2600.00. The high selling bred heifer was consigned by John H. Howard and Sons, Wyalusing, and purchased for $2300.00 by William G. Blose, Penn Laird, Va.

Rynd Home Farm, Cochranton, was the consignor of the top cow in Friday's sale. She was a tall, dairy 3-year old daughter of Penstate Ivanhoe Star, classified Very Good - 87. Her buyers at $3500.00 were Kenneth E. and William B. Nixon, Uniontown.

Both sales were managed by the Pennsylvania Holstein Ass'n, with Director of Promotion John Howard coordinating the activities. Horace Backus, Mexico, New York read pedigrees, while Charles Backus and A. Doty Remsburg, Mexico, New York and Jefferson, Maryland, handled the auctioneering.
